Steel and Automobiles.
Mont Benito Mussolini.
Angora Rabbits Pay.
Governor Fuller's Problem.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1927, by Star Company

UNITED STATES STEEL crawled up a little higher yesterday. Wall Street heard that Secretary Mellon, now in Europe, had done long distance shopping to the extent of 100,000 shares or $13,000,000 worth of Steel common.

The big automobile fight that is coming in the Fall does not discourage automobile builders. Mr. R. J. Reutter, president of the Oldsmobile Company, is adding seventy-six acres to the plant at Lansing, Mich., a one-third increase. Oldsmobile gained $10,000,000 in sales in the last fiscal year.

People want good automobiles. When you make good ones you can sell them at all kinds of prices.

Italians will change the name of Mont Blanc to Mont Benito Mussolini. St. Petersburg is now Leningrad, Constantinople may soon be Kemalopolis. Mount Mussolini seems appropriate. If Rome's ancient rulers could name the months of the year in their honor, why shouldn't Mussolini inheritor of their glory, name the ten highest mountains "Mussolini."

In honor of the event, Vesuvius burst yesterday into a fine eruption.

In France the fur of Angora rabbits sells for 280 francs per kilogram. Several thousand French families in Paris suburbs add substantially to their income every year by raising rabbits. The fur is used in woven textiles largely. Some of it makes fairly good chinchilla. This will interest rabbit kings and queens in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, whose husband created the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York World, died yesterday in France.

Mr. Pulitzer said more than once to this writer and to other friends: "My St. Louis paper was earning more than I needed or wanted, and I was planning to go abroad. It was my wife whose urging brought me to New York and caused me to buy the New York World, instead of going to Europe."

Governor Fuller of Massachusetts heard yesterday the last plea by counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, under sentence of death for murder. The sentencing of the men, known all over the world, has caused violence in many places, and should the alleged murderers be executed undoubtedly violence would follow.

If there is ANY doubt, even the faintest, as to the men's guilt, Governor Fuller will set them free. No clamor will influence him.

If, on the other hand, he concludes there is absolutely NO DOUBT he will let the sentences

Speaker Hull and Two Governors Hop Off for Cleveland

By Associated Press

The New England Council received word today from Detroit that Governors Brewster of Maine and Trumbull of Connecticut, with Speaker Hull of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, who have been attending the conference of Governors, took off from Selfridge Field today for a flight to Cleveland.

There they will join the rest of the New England party, which will arrive in Boston at 11 a. m. tomorrow, except Governor and Mrs. Brewster, who will spend tonight in Cleveland.

GOVERNOR'S BOY GOES UNDER KNIFE AFTER RACE FROM RYE BEACH

The Sacco-Vanzetti case and other grave matters of State were entirely forgotten by Governor Alvan T. Fuller today, as he raced from his Summer home at Rye Beach to the Massachusetts General Hospital with his young son, Alvan T., Jr., who was operated on for appendicitis.

The lad was taken ill with violent pains yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock. At first it was believed he was suffering from some minor complaint, but when he failed to respond to treatment a physician was summoned.

Governor Fuller was busy at the State House until late in the day, hearing the final arguments of counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti. Mrs. Fuller, who was at the bedside of the stricken boy, did not wish to disturb her husband and the Governor knew nothing of the boy's condition until he arrived at his Summer home late last night. FEAR HUB WIFE LOST IN WOODS DIED OF FRIGHT

Boy Scouts, cadets from Sacred Heart Church, Lowell, State Constabulary and police today beat the woods on the Reading-Wilmington line in quest of Mrs. Josephine Murphy, 68, of No. 34 Haynes street, East Boston, who has been missing since yesterday.

Police are confronted with a mystery of more than ordinary proportions, inasmuch as the woman apparently wandered away while exchanging calls with two companions on a blueberrying expedition.

HUSBAND DESPAIRS.

Mrs. Murphy was taken to Wilmington in a car driven by Mrs. Mabel McGrath of No. 56 West Eagle street, East Boston, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Bristol, a neighbor on Haynes street.

Mrs. McGrath, formerly a resident of Wilmington, was familiar with the woods, and took charge of the party.

Mrs. Murphy's husband has given up hope of seeing her alive, convinced her lifelong fear of thunder and lightning caused her to die of fright during the severe storm. She is said to have suffered from heart trouble.

"We reached Wilmington about 11:30 a. m.," said Mrs. McGrath, today, "and went into the woods a little after noon.

"I heard the 1 o'clock whistle and shortly after that Mrs. Murphy called and said: 'Where are you?' I answered: 'We are over here in

FORD, 64, REVEALS NEW 'LOW PRICE' CAR PLANS

Detroit, July 30 (A.P.).—Motor and speed tests of the new "low priced" automobile soon to be introduced on the market by the Ford Motor Company are being made personally by Henry Ford, it was announced today.

Mr. Ford also announced he was not to engage in any trade war in the industry.

The manufacturer has been engaged the last few weeks in driving the car over roads near Dearborn, the announcement from the executive office of the organization said. The results were not disclosed.

Ford who observed his 64th birthday quietly at home today indicated he had completely recovered from injuries received in a recent accident.

NEW INTEREST IN LIFE.

"I feel better and have a greater interest in life than was the case four years ago because I have a new job to tackle that was unforeseen then," he told associates. The "new job" was taken to refer to his new car.

Discussing the new machine, Mr. Ford indicated it would be of the low priced variety. He also referred to it as a Ford.

There have been rumors published regarding the name, most of them having it Edison, in honor of Thomas A. Edison, close friend of the manufacturer.

Find 7 U.S. War Dead in French Shellhole

Washington, July 30 (A.P.).—The bodies of seven members of the 79th Division, who were killed in action at the battle of Montfaucon, have been discovered in an isolated shell hole in France.

A search by the War Department has been in progress on French battlefields for nine years in an effort to locate and identify all American dead, and the discovery of the seven was an incident of that work.

The bodies in the shell hole included that of Lieutenant William A. Sheehan, Company F, 315th Infantry, whose home was in Washington. With the officer were the bodies of these six enlisted men:

Irving S. Roffis of Brooklyn, N. Y.; August H. Rittmiler, Baltimore; Edward C. Moran, Philadelphia; Jesse E. Schall, Philadelphia; Ellis Eskowith, Baltimore; Henry Faller, Pottsville, Pa.

The report received from France by the War Department said the bodies were buried together and that the indications were that they were buried by German troops. There were two identification tags on each body, making the identity certain.

The War Department records show these seven men were killed in action on the morning of Sept. 29, 1918, at the edge of the Bois des Ogons, near the Ferme de la Madeleine. Their units were moved to the rear before there was an opportunity for burial by regimental details.

ORDER CLOSE WATCH ON SUNDAY MEETING; DEADLINE AT PRISON

Police reserves will be held in readiness in every part of the city tomorrow in event of trouble in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration which is to be part of a world-wide show of sympathy for the condemned radicals.

A special force, drawn from all the other police divisions, will be on duty at the Hanover street station in the North End.

If there is any attempt to parade or any indication of trouble, a squad of police will be dispatched immediately to stop it, according to Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley, who said it was his duty to protect citizens and property by preventing disorder.

The meeting of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers is scheduled for 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Tree No. 9 on the Charles street mall of Boston Common.

A police deadline will be thrown around State Prison next Monday and maintained day and night until the two condemned men are either granted clemency or executed.

U.S. GIRLS JOIN QUEBEC WELCOME TO WALES

Quebec, Que., July 30 (I.N.S.).—The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia, bearing the Prince of Wales, his brother, Prince George, and Premier Stanley Baldwin of England, arrived here today with all the members of the royal party in good health and fine spirits.

This old French city is in gala attire with nearly every building flying a flag or decorated with bunting.

The hotels are filled with visitors from all parts of the Dominion and from the United States to get a glimpse of the heir to the British throne. The weather was ideal for the reception.

The distinguished visitors landed within a mile of the spot where in bygone days Wolfe came ashore in the still of the night to plant the British flag on Canadian soil.

FITTING WELCOME.

It was a welcome fit for a pair of Princes of the royal blood. Twenty-one guns boomed the royal salute as the Prince of Wales, followed by Prince George, strode down the gangplank of the cutter Lady Gray.

TWO TRAPPED IN HOUSE RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Trapped on upper floors, two men were rescued over ladders by firemen and a mother staggered to safety down smoke-filled stairways with her three-year-old child in a South End lodging house fire early today. One of the men was taken to the City Hospital.

The scene of the fire was a three and one-half story brick dwelling house at No. 29 East Canton street.

John Barry, 65, a lodger on the second floor, was carried to the street by firemen and sent to City Hospital. Alex Malicka, 49, was taken from a window on the top floor.

Meanwhile, the smell of smoke had aroused Mrs. Edna Thomas, living on the third floor, at No. 31, next-door.

She aroused her husband, Elias Thomas, and while he ran through the house arousing other tenants, Mrs. Thomas carried their three-year-old son, Edward, to the street.

Deputy Chief Caulfield placed the damage at about $1,500.

Miners Bring Sacco Plea to Hub ~ As Death Chamber Is Prepared ~ And Prison Chiefs Await Orders

M. A. FRAZIN. WM. J. BRENNAN.

LIFE PETITION FROM PENNSYLVANIA

Two miners from Scranton, Pa., who arrived in Boston today with a long petition from various organizations in the anthracite regions to Gov. Fuller to spare the lives of Sacco and Vanzetti.

URGES HALT TO HUNGER STRIKE

Mrs. Nicola Sacco pleaded with her husband and Bartolomeo Vanzetti to end their hunger strike. Both are reported by prison officials to be near collapse.

ARGUES FOR LIFE

PREPARE ELECTRIC CHAIR

As defense counsel presented its final arguments Warden Hendry ordered the death chamber made ready in case Governor Fuller refuses to act.

Warden Hendry Deputy Warden Hogsett

THEY AWAIT ORDERS

Warden Hendry and Deputy Warden James Hogsett will be on the watch next week for word from Governor Fuller. If he refuses to intervene the men die August 10.

FULLER MAY SUBMIT HIS SACCO FINDING TO COUNCIL NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Plans for this guard of police reserves were formulated at a conference between Captain William W. Livingston, inspector of divisions of the Boston police department, and Captain Goff of the Charlestown division.

On the night set for the execution, according to the police, the deadline will be strengthened by enough police to enforce order in case of any emergency and nobody will be allowed anywhere near the prison walls. The vicinity will probably be roped off.

In the intervening time before that date, pedestrians and motorists will be permitted to use the street passing the prison but they will be ordered to "keep moving."

Police refuse to admit that they expect any trouble, but simply declare that every precaution must be taken to safeguard lives and property.

WILL CALL EXTRA POLICE.

It is likely that the Charlestown division force will be augmented by extra men from other divisions because of the special guard around the institution.

The two condemned men, whose fate is being weighed in the balance by Governor Fuller at his Summer home at Rye Beach, N. H., continued their hunger strike today.

Assisted by Attorney Joseph Wiggin, his personal counsel, the Governor is formulating one of the most eagerly awaited documents that a Massachusetts chief executive ever has been called upon to write.

His decision is already made, it is believed, but he does not intend to announce it until he has written it out in full, because before that time something may occur to alter his judgment.

MAY SAVE BOTH MEN.

The document will be ready by next Wednesday night at the latest, he said. The fact that Wednesday is the day when his executive council next meets may be significant. It may indicate that he will submit it to the council before making it public.

In that case, it can mean only one thing—that he has decided to save Sacco and Vanzetti.

Under the Constitution of the Commonwealth, the Governor can extend clemency only with the consent of his executive council. But should he decide to let the prisoners die, he would not have to submit anything to the council.

Some sympathizers with the two condemned men believe there is a possibility that action by the Governor may favor Vanzetti while being against Sacco. Only one witness identified Vanzetti as being in the hold-up automobile, they declared, and this witness said Vanzetti was driving the car, while the government admitted to the jury that Vanzetti was not driving the car.

Francis B. Sayre, Harvard Law School instructor and son-in-law of the late President Wilson, was asked today by members of the defense committee to handle an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, in case the committee decides to take such action.

Indications at State Prison are that Sacco, Vanzetti and Celestino Madeiros will all be transferred to cells in the death house while other prison inmates are in their cells after breakfast next Monday morning.

Prison guards reported Sacco and Vanzetti "wobbling" on their feet while taking exercise in the corridor of the cell tier where they are now lodged, in the Cherry Hill or solitary wing of the prison. This exercise consists merely in walking to and fro.

After they had refused to eat breakfast today, they received a call from Dr. Joseph L. McLaughlin, prison doctor, who examined them and talked with them. Dr. McLaughlin still hopes they will eat before the authorities have to resort to forced feeding.

Dr. McLaughlin found Sacco and Vanzetti still weaker when he visited them.

As to the mental condition of the two men, there is disagreement. Some who have talked with them thought they were showing signs of the strain of facing the death chair as fate carries them closer to it. Both are described as despairing of pardon by the Governor; they regard the chair as inevitable.

HINTS EXAMINATION.

Sacco is bearing up more strongly than his friend. It is Vanzetti that sympathizers are more worried about. They say his mentality is noticeably affected by prison life, by his fast, and by what is before him.

The statement was made that this supposed mental condition might lead to a step in their favor by having alienists examine both, with an idea that they would be transferred to a State hospital if found to be unbalanced of brain. State House circles gave little heed to this statement, however.

Mrs. Rose Sacco visited her husband and Vanzetti again today and once more begged them to eat. She was accompanied by Mrs. Jessie Henderson of Wayland, wealthy sympathizer, Mrs. Glendower Evans, society philanthropist, met her in the lobby and greeted her warmly, kissing her on both cheeks.

"I have been staying at Chatham, but I am now going to remain in Boston until everything is settled," said Mrs. Evans who has been active in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti for nearly seven years.

Four Pennsylvania miners took to the State House today a petition in which members of thirty-five locals of the United Mine Workers of America, fifty other societies and the Anthracite Sacco-Vanzetti Conference of Wilkesbarre ask that the condemned men be liberated and compensated for unjust imprisonment and suffering.

Women Students to Enter Springfield Y. M. C. A. College

Springfield, July 30 (A.P.)—A radical departure by which an equal number of women students will be permitted to take courses at the next session of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College was announced by Colonel B. A. Franklin at a banquet marking the close of the college Summer school.

Courses in pedagogy, religious education and physical education, including coaching in the major sports, social recreation, managing club affairs and curriculum building, will be available to the women students.

SACCO PARADE UNNOTICED

Geneva, Switzerland, July 30 (A.P.)—Today's scheduled Sacco-Vanzetti protest parade passed almost unnoticed through torrid Geneva streets to one of the great squares, where three speakers, headed by the Socialist Councillor Rosselet addressed a crowd that numbered about 400.

Some of the placards carried in the parade read: "Innocence Punished Is Repeated Crime," "Sacco-Vanzetti Were Stricken for Us; Let's Strike a Blow for Them" and "To Call in the Executioner Is to Summons the Revolt."

There was no formidable Communist and Socialist organization of the protest meeting and most of the auditors appeared to be passersby. The few police on hand in spick and span holiday blue had little to do.

Meanwhile Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation at the naval conference, worked away alone in the top floor room of his hotel with a lone Swiss detective outside the door to guard him from possible demonstrations.

THIEVES ROB GARAGE AS POLICEMEN ARE NEAR

While half a dozen policemen were within fifty feet, thieves broke into the Newton town garage just back of the Newton police station, early today and stole five new automobile tires. The tires were stolen from a stall adjoining the stall where the Newton police ambulance is housed. Officers were in and out of the garage throughout the night, but no one could be found today who saw anything of the marauders. The thieves evidently used a skeleton key to gain entrance to the garage.

FULLER'S SON UNDER KNIFE

Throughout the night the boy's condition remained unchanged and he suffered considerable pain. A physician was at the bedside and it was finally decided to take the lad to the Massachusetts General Hospital for observation and an operation, should one be necessary.

The Governor's family was astir at daybreak and at 6 o'clock the Governor and Mrs. Fuller started over the road from Rye with their stricken boy.

At the hospital everything was in waiting for receiving the young patient and specialists immediately performed an operation on the boy. Both the Governor and Mrs. Fuller remained at the hospital.

Governor Fuller this afternoon telephoned his secretary, Herman A. MacDonald, that the boy was resting easily and that no complications were anticipated. The Governor intends to return to his Summer home tonight, but will be back at the hospital again tomorrow morning.

There was some speculation at the State House as to what effect the operation on the lad would have on the announcement of the Governor's decision in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. The Governor had planned to spend the week-end in preparing his findings in the case, but these plans have been upset by the unforeseen illness of Alvan Jr.

Hospital physicians told the Governor that if all went well the boy could be taken from the hospital in about ten days.

The Governor's son, who is known to his intimates as "Persh," is no stranger to the Massachusetts General Hospital. Last September he was thrown from a pony while riding at his father's Summer home and suffered a fracture of the shoulder.

Then, as today, the boy was rushed from Rye to the hospital by automobile. His shoulder was set without a whimper coming from the boy.

"Tell Ma I'm O. K." was all he said when the operation was over.

Two weeks ago the lad was made an honorary sergeant in the howitzer company of the 101st Infantry of the Yankee Division. The lad was visiting Camp Devens with his father when the honor was conferred upon him.

Vatican Reprimands Priest for Slap at U. S. Films

Rome, July 30 (A.P.)—The Rev. Piantelli, a comparatively new member of the staff of Osservatore Romano, official organ of the Vatican, who wrote an attack upon American films in the July 21 issue, has been reprimanded, it was learned today.

The Vatican, the Associated Press is informed, while sharing completely the Rev. Piantelli's view in his criticism of the frivolousness of some American film productions, does not agree with his remarks against American civilization and its deleterious influence in Europe.

On the contrary, it is stated, the Holy See finds much which is admirable and beneficial in American civilization.

862,287 BAY STATERS ARE AMONG USERS

One out of every twenty telephones in use in the entire world is located in New England, according to statistics prepared by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

On July 1 of this year there were over 1,500,000 telephones in operation in New England as compared with 27,783,963 telephones in use in the various countries of the world. One out of eleven telephones in the United States is located in New England, the figures show, this country having 16,936,918 telephones in operation.

Of the New England States Massachusetts has 862,287 telephones of which number 412,161, or approximately one-half, are located in the Boston Metropolitan zone. Vermont has the fewest telephones of any New England State with 61,036 in use.

The figures show that Americans use the telephone much more than any other people. In 1925 there were 196 calls per capita per year in the United States as compared with 25 calls per capita in Great Britain, 20 per capita in France and 23 per capita in Germany.

She charged her husband with cruelty, but after hearing the case in Suffolk Probate Court Judge Prest has ordered her suit dismissed. During the hearing of the case Mrs. Desmond charged in her testimony that her husband had hurled tomatoes at her.

Mrs. Desmond also testified that besides other indignities that she was made to suffer, her husband gave her a black eye. He also put her out of the house, she charged. Desmond, in contesting the suit, claimed that he was the target for electric lamps and vases hurled by his wife while he was sick in bed.

DEATH TURNED THOUGHTS TO RELIGION

Bucharest, Rumania, July 30 (A.P.)—Grief-stricken over the death of King Ferdinand, Queen Marie may seek peace and consolation within the quiet walls of a convent, it is believed by her close friends.

The idea of Queen Marie entering a convent is not favorably received by the Rumanian peasantry. She has long been the peasants' idol and they are averse to losing a champion of their interests.

They say she has often been drawn to the picturesque sixteenth century convent, near her castle in the Carpathian village of Bran, for prayer and meditation, and think it likely that she will join the nuns in this retreat.

From the time Marie came to Rumania thirty-five years ago she has been deeply interested in the historic Rumanian monasteries and convents, and by study and visits she learned much of their history, architecture and decorations.

When the King became seriously ill months ago, she turned more and more to the Bran retreat, and since his death, virtually all of her time has been given over to religion. She has been heard to say repeatedly that relief and consolation from grief and disappointments are to be found only within the cloistered peace of a convent, away from the strife and restlessness of the world.

Cardinal to Send Pope Letter by 'Old Glory'

The flight of William Randolph Hearst's giant monoplane "Old Glory" from New York to Rome and return will be of particular interest to Bostonians as it will carry, through the Boston Evening American, a personal letter to the Pope, written in Italian by Cardinal O'Connell, and will be an additional factor in cementing the good will of the two nations which the flight is expected to accomplish.

The double hop of "Old Glory," scheduled to take place in August, continues to receive glowing endorsements from prominent citizens.

Joseph W. Powell, member of the Massachusetts Aviation Commission, said:

BIG AID TO AVIATION

"A feat of feats in an era of unprecedented progress. The happy conclusion of the proposed Hearst round-trip flight would be not only another illustration of American enterprise and initiative but would add priceless data to our fast accumulating knowledge of aviation science.

"Not the least of its benefits will be the reams of publicity it will add to flying development. By assuring a speedier personal touch between distant nations, the round-trip flight will further international amity and co-operation toward world betterment and progress."

PRAISES HEARST ON FLIGHT

Gardiner H. Fiske, also a member of the Massachusetts Aviation Commission, had this to say:

"William Randolph Hearst is to be congratulated on the further advance he will give aviation in this epoch-making flight to Rome and return. In this wonderful aviation year, with its exploits of Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd, let us wish Godspeed to Bertaud and Hill and await without fear the successful placing of their names alongside the names of the eight immortal pilots who have this year made aviation history.

"All aviation will watch the Hearst flight as another forerunner of regular transoceanic service and will thank Mr. Hearst for his public

Not the navy serge suit of a Paris embassy attache this time, but a rough outing costume with which the youthful transatlantic flier found it necessary to equip himself today in order properly to enjoy a week-end of fishing, swimming, boating and picnicking. The identity of the donor of the necessary articles remained undisclosed.

"You see we travel light," a member of the colonel's entourage said, "and rough clothing isn't on our list."

The week-end of "roughing it" will be the first real rest for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh since he started from New York city ten days ago on his air tour of the United States, until he reaches Butte, Mont., where a week's stay at a mountain hunting lodge has been arranged.

It will be spot several miles from Buffalo, the location of which has been kept a closely guarded secret. Timothy Burns, general manager of the Lackawanna plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company and chairman of the Buffalo Lindbergh reception committee, is acting as host. Accompanied by Burns and a couple of friends, Lindbergh and his companions on the tour left the city early today.

CAPTIVE DRAGON TO TELL IT TO GRAND JURY

Indianapolis, Ind., July 30 (I.N.S.)—D. C. Stephenson today came from State Prison to Indianapolis, once the seat from which he ruled Indiana, once the seat from which he ruled Indiana, to tell the Grand Jury details of his corrupt Klan regime.

Already in possession of the two famous black boxes of the former Klan grand dragon and his entire file of private papers, the jury proposes to receive an explanation of the political data from the lips of "the Old Man of the Klan" himself.

"I will go through with what I have started.

"I purchased the Marion County and State officials involved in this investigation in an open market. I paid an excessive price for them.

"Afterwards they railroaded me to prison and convicted me of a crime of which I was not guilty. I can't even have the right to talk with my attorneys privately. They have denied me that privilege. Now I am going to turn them over to the State for a while."

VESUVIUS SPITS FIRE VIOLENTLY

Naples, Italy, July 30 (A.P.).—In the throes of its most violent eruption in 11 years, Mt. Vesuvius today hurled hundreds of tons of incandescent fragments far into the air, while a huge column of lava, after nearly filling the inner crater, began to creep over the edge toward the Bay of Naples. Residents of nearby towns prepared for flight.

The low point at which the lava is finding exit from the crater already is covered by the hardened flow of Nov 3, 1926, but the extent and force of the present flow of flaming material has not been equalled since Jan. 2, 1916.

All night long there were violent explosions, accompanied by the hurling of fragments every minute. A column of pink flame-tinted smoke, rising to a bank of ominous clouds, stood outlined against the blackness of the sky and scores of thousands remained awake most of the night to watch the spectacle.

REPORT 26 KILLED IN CHINESE EARTHQUAKE

London, July 29 (A.P.).—A report reaching the China Inland mission says 26 persons were killed and many injured at Liangchow, China, in the great earthquake which devastated Kansu Province, May 23. Earlier advices reaching London had estimated that at least 10,000 perished in Liangchow and that the casualty list in the catastrophe totaled 100,000.

The mission's report was received from the Rev. W. H. Belcher of the United Methodist Church at Liangchow. The quake was so violent that three pagodas, dating back 1,000 years, were destroyed in Liangchow.

B. & M. RENEWS LEASE OF CHAMPLAIN LINE

Portland, Me., July 30 (A.P.).—President Morris McDonald of the Maine Central Railroad announces today that a new lease of that portion of the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain railroad running between Lunenburg and St. Johnsbury, Vt., had been arranged and that operation would continue as heretofore.

Announcement made on May 25 that it would be discontinued is withdrawn.

GIVEN 30 DAYS FOR AUTO CRASH

Albert Stone of No. 349 Blue Hill avenue, Boston, was found guilty of driving a car so as to endanger the public and was sentenced to 30 days in the House of Correction by Judge Samuel R. Cutler in Chelsea District Court, today. He appealed.

Stone's conviction was the result of a triple collision on the Revere Beach boulevard near the Slade Spice Mills on July 11, in which 14 persons were injured, nine of them being taken to hospitals.

LEVINE OFF TO ENGLAND, LEAVES DROUHIN BEHIND

Upon reaching Croydon, Levine planned to take another machine to Nottingham for the King's Cup races, returning to Paris Monday or Tuesday.

(Levine's desire to take the "Columbia" to Nottingham for the cup races, is reported to have resulted in a difference of opinion between him and Maurice Drouhin, his French pilot, the latter being averse to exhibition flights at this time as the Columbia is being groomed for a transatlantic flight.)

U. S. TOURISTS CAN STAY IN CANADA NINETY DAYS

Ottawa, Ont., July 30 (A.P.).—Tourists from the United States hereafter will be permitted to remain in Canada for a period of ninety days, instead of sixty. This was made known after a conference between officials of the Customs Department and Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the Canadian Automobile Association. Hector Carruthers, president of the local automobile association, who attended the conference, stated that through the extension the tourist would not be put under any kind of obligation. He merely has to go to the nearest collector of customs and convince him that he is a bona fide tourist.

Houdini's Brother Dies

Columbus, Ohio, July 30 (A. P.).—N. J. Weiss, brother of Harry Houdini, handcuff king, is dead. Mr. Weiss was 56 years old and his home was in New York.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

North Shore Smart Set Turns Out for Tennis Match on Essex County Club Courts

SOCIETY FAIRLY STORMED the gates at Essex County yesterday for an opportunity to see the two "Helens" perform on the courts. One expects the sports loving North Shore to turn out enthusiastically for such a topnotch event, but they outstripped all expectations and came in droves. When the seat supply was exhausted (as it was long before the first ball went over the net) the Fashionables stormed every available spot in and around the stands. What cared they for the brilliant sun? Or the insecurity of an improvised perch? Some of the youngsters even lay prone on the greensward for a peek at their favorite under the canvas that walled the courts.

IT WAS A BRILLIANT GALLERY that came to see these most brilliant of players. The youngsters were brought to see Miss Wills and Miss Jacobs in a tennis classic. The sub-debs and their swains far outnumbered the debutantes. And as for the elders, like fine good sports they followed every volley and return with keenest enthusiasm. That Bostonian of distinction, Mrs. Henry Lee Higginson came out for the Essex County matches. Alert and up to the moment is this Grande Dame, the widow of the late lamented "Major" Higginson. She enjoys a tennis match with the best of the youngest of them.

MISS BETTY BEAL, BACK AT the North Shore for the Summer after a Winter and Spring in London in the very heart of court and diplomatic set doings, sat with Mrs. William Dexter. Mrs. Dexter was in white, from her wide tropic-like sun hat to her flat soled shoes. Miss Beal achieved an enviable effect of airy coolness by her golden brown hat with a pompom of ostrich and her silken frock of harmonizing beige and brown.

GRAEME HAUGHTON SAT UP on the topmost row of the gallery sheltered from Old Sol's generous rays most effectively. He carried an enormous umbrella and wore a sun hat that was the umbrella's small cousin. Mrs. Rodman Paul Snelling, in white; Mrs. Gordon Abbott, in flowered chiffon with bright blue veil billowing in the breeze and Mrs. E. Huntington Wolcott, in summery prints were in the crowd that never took its eyes from the two contestants.

MISS FRANCES DEWART, BACK AT THE SHORE AFTER NEARLY a year abroad, wore a bright blue printed chiffon with small blue hat. Miss Helen Moseley's neckerchief whipping the air and her bright painted roadster were smart in equal degree. Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, handsome mother of two handsome daughters, looked quite as girlish as did the Misses Anne and Theodora. All three wore the wide floppy hats so greatly the vogue. Mrs. Harris Livermore's frock and her enormous hat of coarse straw both gleamed a gorgeous dahlia red in the sunshine. Mrs. Edward Livingston Bigelow was in blue silk with paper white hat. Mrs. William de Ford Beal tied one of those bright neckerchiefs about her shoulders. It gave an air to her white frock.

MRS. AUGUSTUS F. GOODWIN WAS IN TAN, BOTH HAT AND frock. Miss Betty Moulton's green frock and her transparent, floppy hat were becomingly in the picture. Miss Phyllis Ellsworth, sub-debutante, was in white. Miss Marjorie Morrill and Miss Priscilla Rhodes (they followed the match with eyes of experts), were both in pretty rose pink frocks. Miss Gertrude Taylor's blonde good looks were set off with a white straw hat wide and drooping, and a frock of blue. Mrs. William Endicott, who has so successfully engineered the tournament, was a picture in sky blue chiffon and a white hat edged in blue.

DEVOTED POLOISTS SUCH AS J. DUDLEY CLARK AND HIS SON, Forrester Clark, think nothing of journeying from Sherborn down to Myopia three times a week to have a go at their favorite game. Both the Clarks figure largely in the game as Myopia and Princemere put it on. Today the teams meet at Myopia, in the afternoon. And the players are drawn from such brilliant performers with the mallet as Q. A. Shaw McKean, Harry East, Frederick Prince, Jr., and others of that ilk. They may not all be "8 goal" or "9 goal" players but they serve the shore with some sparkling events, nevertheless.

With her two small daughters, Grace and Ellen, the society matron was a regular attendant at the Essex County Club tennis tournament.

JUST AS SOON AS THERE IS A LULL IN REHEARSALS, THE opera company that has won such warm approval at the North Shore is in for a round of entertaining. Now there's no interval in the every-day all-day routine under which the company moves that permits frivolities. But soon that interval arrives, Mrs. William H. Coolidge will be a hostess for the satire group in what will be the first party in their honor. Next Wednesday at Stillington, the company does "Fisaro" and everyone looks for a duplication of the fine success they achieved with Faust. Stillington will be filled to its doors. There's a large and important advance sale.

JUST AT THE HEIGHT OF ITS SUMMER LOVELINESS, THE Nahant estate of Mrs. Charles Hammond Gibson and her son, Charles H. Gibson, is to be opened today in compliment to the Legion post. The Gibson place is a North Shore beauty spot, with its wealth of roses and Mrs. and Mr. Gibson delight in showing its richness now and then to a chosen few. I believe this entertaining of the Legion is a hospitality at "Forty Steps" an unlly indulged in by the Gibsons, and greatly appreciated by the day's special guests.

COOLIDGE GIVES UP HOPE FOR NAVAL PACT

Geneva, July 30 (A.P.).—Adjournment of the naval conference without a final plenary session is now considered a possibility. There is a growing opinion that a public session, "with fireworks" by both British and American delegates, would do no good and conceivably might do harm.

Washington, July 30 (A.P.).—Through President Coolidge and his two Cabinet advisers, Secretaries Kellogg and Wilbur, the American Government has reflected its chief objection to the British proposals for warship construction presented to the Geneva three-power conference on the basis that they call for a larger American naval expansion than the administration wishes to effect.

Feeling that the conference will culminate without a limitation agreement because of the inacceptability of the British plan to Japan and the United States, officials of the Washington government today were concentrating upon a study of the American views which will undoubtedly be presented at the parley's adjournment.

COLLAPSE FORECAST.

The end of the conference at a plenary session next week is forecast and Ambassador Gibson, chief of the American delegation, is expected to present this country's position in an address at the final meeting.

The President at his Summer White House at Rapid City, South Dakota, is understood to be plainly determined not to accept the British terms.

President Coolidge has no plans for further limitation parleys and regards the situation as status quo.

AGAINST NAVY INCREASE.

In the opinion of the President also the tonnage of cruisers and calibre of the guns around which the main differences of the conference appear to centre, are only incidental to the main issue about the size of a navy which England would require this country to build under its plan.

Mr. Coolidge, in calling the conference, it was recalled, had expressed the hope that a reduction of the size of the navies of the three nations and a resultant economy in their governmental expenditures would be solved, together with a concommitant development of peace and better understanding.

Hope for Adjournment Without "Hard Words"

Geneva, Switzerland, July 30 (A.P.).—Although the British and American delegations to the naval reduction conference apparently are as far apart as ever on the knotty 8-inch gun cruiser problem, the feeling persists that if a break in the conference is inevitable, as seemed to be the case today, it will be effected without hard words being used on either side.

The Japanese have shown particular anxiety as if the conference adjourns without reaching an agreement, nothing should be said at the final publics session which might engender misunderstanding between the powers concerned, but the opinion has been given that Japanese intervention will not be needed to tone down the concluding declarations of the Americans and British.

BRISBANE AND FAMILY TO TAKE EUROPEAN TRIP

New York, July 30.—Arthur Brisbane, accompanied by Mrs. Brisbane, Miss Sarah and Master Seward Brisbane, will sail for Europe on the Cunard liner Aquitania which sails from New York shortly after midnight Monday morning. Among the other passengers will be George B. Parker, editorial executive of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, and Frederick Birchall, assistant managing editor of the New York Times.

Prince Edward was clad in the tartan breeks and the glengarry cap of a colonel of the Seaforth Highlanders. Prince George wore a naval uniform. A tremendous cheer arose to the heavens from the crowd which thronged the picturesque town and jammed the railing of Dufferin Terrace cut into the cliffs fronting the beautiful Chateau Frontenac.

Hundreds of American tourists yelled with the rest. Pretty Yankee girls shouted and waved their hands throwing kisses to the youthful British Princes.

The Royal Twenty-second French Canadian Regiment, guard of honor, stood rigidly at present arms, and the Royal Dragoons pointed sword points to the bright Summer skies, as the Prince of Wales smilingly inspected them.

WALES SPEAKS IN FRENCH.

There were posings for the cameramen, and then the party passed into the pavilion erected on the King's wharf to receive the official greeting of the Mayor of Quebec.

Late in the morning the visitors will go aboard the steamer St. Lawrence and spend the rest of the day on the river enroute to Montreal where they will arrive about 10 o'clock in the evening. Later they will visit Ottawa and, Toronto.

"For my own and my brother's part, I want to thank you for the wonderful welcome accorded us by the citizens of Quebec today," said the Prince of Wales in replying to the Mayor's address of welcome. "Your words assure me of the commencement of my visit to Canada under most favorable auspices and that our sentiments on landing again on these shores are reciprocated.

"Please express to your citizens our recognition of their cordial welcome and our pleasure to find ourselves again in your beautiful and historical city."

In deference to the French Canadian aspect of the city's populace the Prince of Wales spoke in French.

PREMIER KING THERE.

Premier Mackenzie King came to Quebec to greet the visitors. Elaborate ceremonies of welcome have been prepared here to last through the Saturday and Sunday.

Following the initial ceremonies the two Princes went to "Spencerwood," the home of Lieutenant-Governor Perodeau, while Premier and Mrs. Baldwin remained at the Hotel Frontenac.

There will be a State dinner this evening at which the royal visitors and the Premier will be guests of honor.

The visitors will attend the Anglican Cathedral Sunday morning leaving in the afternoon by boat for Montreal. Later they will visit Ottawa and Toronto.

This is Premier Baldwin's first trip to Canada, and he expressed keen eagerness to see the country and meet the people.

"I make it a rule in life to make every journey across the Atlantic as far as possible and to see as much of the world as opportunity offers," the Prince of Wales said in thanking his hosts at a provincial government luncheon at the Chateau Frontenac.

He regretted, he said, that he could not accept the myriad invitations extended to him from all corners of the American continent on his present visit.

He spoke in chatty vein of the voyage across on the Empress of Australia, expressed his joy at being back on Canadian and North American soil and pleasure in bringing his younger brother Prince George with him on the visit to his ranch in the Canadian-West.

Poking subtle fun at Premier Baldwin, who was also a luncheon guest, the Prince remarked that it was impossible for him to treat the British Premier as a "teetherfoot" as he had found him a veritable encyclopedia of information and knowledge of Canada, despite the fact that he had not visited the country for thirty-seven years.

Dangerous to Give Strangers a "Lift," Says Chief

Augusta, Me., July 30 (A.P.).—"Don't give a stranger a ride!"

This warning to motorists was sounded today by Arthur H. Field, chief of the State highway police. He disapproves the increasing practice of giving strangers a "lift."

It may lead to trouble for the motorist, he said, adding that he might be held up and robbed, that he would be liable for damages if his passenger were injured in an accident and that he might be assisting a criminal to escape.

Thieves Get $2,500 Loot in Store Near Police Station

Within a stone's throw of the East Boston police station, today, thieves looted the clothing store of Harry Fins in Meridian street, making away with a truckload of suits, neckwear, socks and shirts valued at $2,500.

The thieves forced a bar on a rear door and entered the cellar of the store, forcing another door leading into the place.

More than 100 men's suits were stolen.

NORMA ROSE PILOTS HER ENTRY

The doll carriage parade at the annual Brookline municipal field day was a notable success and a whole fleet of "aircraft turned out at the Cypress street playground.

MARGARET AND JOHN DELORIE HAD A CLASSY DISPLAY

All of the entries showed that the little ones and their parents had spent considerable time preparing for the field day feature. Each was applauded as the long line of carriages passed.

ELEANOR GLYNN'S "SPIRIT"

The winning "plane" was designed by George Mason and Vincent Mahan was the pilot. Young Mason got Lindy's signature when the ace was in the Hub.

DORCHESTER BOY RECEIVES TROPHY

James T. Williams, Jr., Editor of Universal Service, presenting the Boston Evening American trophy to Henry O. Kelley, of No. 17 Hartland street, Dorchester, at Camp Devens.

VERMONT WINNER

Thomas Wilson Dunn, 18, of No. 221 Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale, was awarded the trophy at Fort Ethan Allen at Burlington, Vt.

ROSLINDALE BOY GETS TROPHY

Thomas Wilson Dunn, 18, of No. 221 Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale, was awarded a silver cup by the Boston Evening American at Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vt., for proficiency shown during the military training camp just closed.

The trophy was awarded him in recognition of his general demeanor in camp and his ability to command.

Young Dunn was graduated from Boston Latin School last June and will enter Harvard in the Fall. In his high school career, he enjoyed the distinction of being awarded a colonelcy while sick in bed. His regiment, the fourth, won the prize drill flag awarded this year for the first time by the Boston school committee.

Thomas has always shown a liking for things military. Three years ago he was at Camp Devens in the infantry. For the past two years he has gone to Burlington, Vt., for cavalry training.

In addition to school cadet honors, the boy was president of the senior class, manager of the track team and was on the football team for two years. At Fort Ethan Allen he was attached to B Troop, Third Cavalry.

DORCHESTER BOY PRESENTED AMERICAN CUP AT DEVENS

Camp Devens, July 30.—While thousands of admiring friends looked on, 18-year-old Henry O. Kelley, of No. 17 Hartland street, Dorchester, was presented the Boston Evening American trophy as the Citizens' Military Training Camp student-soldier possessing the highest qualities of citizenship.

Presentation of the large silver cup was made by James T. Williams, Jr., Universal Service Editor at Washington, in the absence of Colonel Frank Knox, regional director of the Hearst newspapers in New England. The presentation took place at the final review of the student soldiers and was a colorful picture. Many prominent military officers were present.

After placing the silver trophy in young Kelley's hands, Mr. Williams said, "Loyalty is the sum of all the virtues.

"Its outward and visible sign is character. You have shown those traits of character which so impressed themselves upon your superior officers that they have recommended you to receive this cup, which the Boston Evening American, thanks to the generosity of its owner, William Randolph Hearst, is awarding this year to the student 'who, by his demeanor in camp, response to authority and ability to command, indicates the highest qualities of citizenship.'

GOOD EXAMPLE.

"With a real sense of privilege I have come from Washington to make this presentation in behalf of the Boston Evening American, in the absence of Colonel Frank Knox, who is unavoidably absent.

"I congratulate you, sir, upon your record at this camp. The power of your example in taking this course in training with the colors, for national citizenship, will be felt throughout your community and there will be young men here next year following in your footsteps and striving with you to convince your countrymen that 'safety first is a good rule for the road but a rotten rule for life.'

"That is the great lesson which the C. M. T. C. is teaching the young men of today."

Other awards made at the same time were:

Koayne trophy, presented by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts to Blue Student Louis Chiocola, of No. 81 Cabot street, Roxbury, as "the student who stood markedly above his fellows in particular military matters, with particular reference to marksmanship."

MEDALS PRESENTED.

Worcester County Council gold watch, presented by that organization to Harold E. McCormic of No. 446 Park avenue, Worcester, as "the outstanding basic student of Worcester County.

State Veterans of Foreign Wars cup, presented to Theodore B. Reardon of Charlestown as "the soldier possessing the best military bearing."

Civitan medals were presented by the Civitan Club of Boston to the following, who were designated "honor students": Robert J. Plunkett, of No. 86 Hovey street, Watertown; Alan Tompkins, of No. 106 Park avenue, Bridgeport, Ct., Edwin D. Keyes, of No. 62 Dudley avenue, Roslindale; Lloyd J. Duest, of No. 70 Hovey street, Watertown, and Hamilton C. Eastman of No. 76 Derby Dingle, Springfield.

Mr. Du Pont declined to make any further statement.

MISSION WORKER DIES IN FLEEING CHINA WAR ZONE

Peking, July 30 (A.P.).—The Odyssey of a party of missionaries withdrawing from interior China is related in a consular report from Hankow announcing the arrival there of six of the eleven American Roman Catholic missionaries who started several months ago to withdraw from Hunan Province, South Central China. To avoid the war area the party, three of whom were women, had to circle westward through Kweichow and Szechwan Provinces. The perilous journey claimed the life of one of the travelers, Sister Stadtmiller dying after reaching Chungking. The others continued on to Hankow.

BUD LEARNS HIS LENA'S EYES ARE GRAY

New York, July 30.—Bud and Lena Stillman came out of their honeymoon suite at the Hotel Shelton long enough today to go to the French Consul's office to have their passports vised.

A dozen newspapermen swarmed about them. Bud smiled and threw up his hands.

"If you boys don't mind, I'd just as soon say nothing," he said, then added:

"Now, don't ask me about her eyes—they're gray."

Bud laughed when he said that because when he was asked a few days ago what color Lena's eyes were he had to admit he didn't know.

They returned to the hotel within half an hour and announced they expected to remain in their suite throughout the day except perhaps for a little excursion later on.

They are scheduled to sail for Europe at midnight tomorrow.

HUB TRAVELERS COMING HOME ON WESTPHALIA

With a large number of returning Hub travelers aboard, the Hamburg-American liner Westphalia will arrive at Commonwealth Pier, Monday morning according to a wireless message received today from Captain Robert Niss, enroute from Germany and Ireland to this port. In addition, a consignment of animals from the African jungles will be landed here to be shipped to the Hagenback farm at Nashua, N. H. Among Bostonians returning are, Miss Irma G. Smith of Roxbury, Dr. Adolf Krebs of Jamaica Plain, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Coblenzer of Allston, Miss Regina M. Whalley, Miss Elena M. Mahoney and Harriet Emanage. Other New Englanders include Mr. and Mrs. David F. Murphy of Lexington, Thomas M. Meredith and Thomas P. Meredith of Athol, and Edith McKee of Norwood.

CHARGED WITH SWINDLING GIRL IN BEACH COURTSHIP

Buffalo, N. Y., July 30 (I. N. S.).—Charged by Estelle Raymond, of Wheatfield, with courting her and then swindling her, William J. Gillig, of New York city, was arrested today.

Miss Raymond alleged that Gillig gave her a worthless check for $300 in exchange for cash. She said she met Gillig at a local beach and that after a whirlwind courtship by him he offered to establish her in a millinery business.

PEACE PLAN FOR PHILIPPINES OUTLINED

Williamstown, July 30 (A.P.).—A plan by which the United States might retain control of the Philippine Islands and at the same time permit Filipinos virtually to govern themselves was sketched before the Institute of Politics today.

C. C. Batchelder, Acting Secretary of the Interior, prefacing his remarks with the assertion that America's "superiority complex and neglect" are responsible for turbulence in the islands presented the administrative plan.

PLAN FOR NEW CABINET.

The plan would provide for a prime minister, appointed by the Governor-General, who would select his own Cabinet. The Cabinet would be obliged to resign if a vote of confidence were refused by the Legislature, and the Legislature would dissolve at such a crisis to permit elections to return or supplant it.

Filipinos would have complete control of their domestic affairs, subject to supervision by the Governor-General. The latter, with approval of a Philippine Commission in the United States, would have the power to take over any part of the administration being mismanaged.

PLEDGE NO AGITATION.

The Philippine commission would comprise a member of the insular Legislature, a United States judge and an American once resident in the islands. The commission's powers would be juridical, and it would decide on questions arising between the Filipino Legislature and the Governor-General. In return for this form of government, the islanders would pledge themselves to 20 years of nonagitation against American dominion. A Constitution drawn up "by experts and not politicians" would be a part of the plan.

Batchelder said the plan, if adopted, would conciliate American business interests and Filipino nationalists and would safeguard the islands economically, strategically and politically.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 30 (A.P.).—The sloop Heliotrope of the British navy anchored today for the annual international tennis week which opens Monday to continue through Aug. 12. The H. M. S. Cairo, a cruiser, was expected here later in the day.

SEEK ANTIQUE LOOTERS IN BIG ROBBERY

A gang which has carried on nationwide thievery of valuable antiques, is sought by detectives in the hunt for the looters of the Summer home of Mrs. N. S. Campbell, Rhode Island society matron, at Newport, N. H. The thieves carried off antiques worth $100,000, the detectives said.

The Newport theft was engineered by clever men supposed to have been acting in conjunction with antique experts, according to a police theory. The loot was hauled away in automobiles and represented in large part heirlooms and valuables regarded by Mrs. Campbell as without price.

For a month and a half the robbery was kept secret, the detectives hoping the thieves might be trailed through their disposing of the plunder at antique shops or to collectors.

Mrs. Campbell was Miss Elsie Aldrich, daughter of the late Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, and is a sister of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Included in the loot were very rare china rendered even more valuable by historical associations, Chinese vases an antique collector would travel around the world to buy, and a "Sister and Brother" bronze statue that is one of ten only in existence.

Antiques are among the hardest kind of loot to recover, according to detectives, as there is now such a host of small antique dealers along every automobile highway, and there are so many enthusiastic, wealthy collectors willing to buy and ask no questions, if they see a chance to add something really rare and valuable to their private collections.

VETERAN BRAINTREE FIRE OFFICIAL PASSES AWAY

Deputy Fire Chief Frank O. Whitmarsh, retired, for more than 50 years connected with the Braintree fire department, died today at his home on Shaw street, East Braintree, aged 79 years. He had been ill three months. Deputy Whitmarsh, who was sergeant-at-arms of the Massachusetts Fire Chiefs Club for more than 40 years, was born in Braintree. As a youth he joined the old Union hand tub company in East Braintree, working up in the department through the positions of foreman, captain, deputy and chief. He was given the grade of deputy on retirement some years ago. He designed the form of grave marker used for firemen in Massachusetts. A widow, son and daughter survive. Deputy Whitmarsh. The funeral will take place Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. from All Soul's Church, Braintree.

The Three Musketeers ~ By Alexandre Dumas

D'Artagnan was forced to give up his search for Constance, who had disappeared. He found his three friends, Porthos, Aramis and Athos. Athos, while drunk, told him how he had once married a beautiful girl of sixteen. One day, when she fell from her horse and lay in a faint, he had made a terrible discovery.

As the supposedly innocent girl lay unconscious he saw on her white shoulder the brand of a thief. Athos had been so horror-struck and infuriated by the discovery that he had hanged her from a tree. He had left her, thinking her dead, but the horrifying memory of her had pursued him and saddened his days.

Soon after, d'Artagnan and the three musketeers found they were to join in the siege of Rochelle, the Huguenot stronghold in France. They were glad of the chance of action. Meanwhile, d'Artagnan saw the beautiful blond lady of Meung. She was arguing with a gentleman who rode beside her carriage.

The gentleman was her brother-in-law, Lord de Winter. After the lady had driven away, d'Artagnan continued the argument in her behalf, fought a duel with Lord de Winter and, finally, gained his friendship. That evening the nobleman introduced d'Artagnan to Milady de Winter. (Continued Monday.)

STAGE AND SCREEN

All on His Spare Time!

Boyd Center, featured in the new Metropolitan stage show, plays 33 musical instruments—just as easy! This includes one of the largest all-metal horns known to the world of sight and sound. Give it a name? Why, Mr. Center calls it a "gir-af-a-sax," of course.

Bring Back That Bag!

Phil Ryley, one of Mr. Ziegfeld's star entertainers in the new edition of the "Follies," which has its premiere Tuesday evening at the Colonial, grimly remarks that there would be more and better vacations if the suitcase borrowers returned them promptly.

NEW AND UNTRIED 'FOLLIES' EDITION FLUTTERS TO THE COLONIAL NEXT TUESDAY

VEHEMENTLY asserting herself over George Fawcett, Patsy Ruth Miller plays the type of heroine that can vanquish any mere man, by gosh, in a film called "Painting The Town," which starts Monday at Loew's State.

GOOD CLEAN FUN, of the gay and gallant nineties, is the style of Rose King and Chick Yorke, high powered comedians in the new revue festival, "A La Carte." (Tremont).

NORMA TAYLOR is a typical Ziegfeldian beauty in the new "Follies" starting next Tuesday evening at the Colonial.

HARD OF HEARING? Not at all. Nevertheless, Joan Crawford is turning what otherwise might be called a deaf ear to John Gilbert's proposal in the stirring drama, "12 Miles Out," which starts Monday at the Orpheum.

'THE CALINDA,' NEW ONE FOR DANCERS

"The Calinda," one of the brisk dance and song hits of Rosalie Stewart's new musical revue, "A La Carte," now playing at the Tremont, is predicted to be the coming popular dance craze of the country. It promises to succeed the popularity of both the "Charleston" and the "Black Bottom." "The Calinda" is sure to have wider appeal for ballroom dancing since it consists of steps that can be simply executed without painful distortions, or contortions.

Herman Hupfield, who is familiarly known along "Song Lane" in New York, as "Do-Do," wrote the number. It has a catchy swing and pleasing lyrics. Sam Rose, who has staged most of the dance numbers in the show, devised and routined the steps. He has been featured in productions and vaudeville for several years.

In "A La Carte" the number is presented by Maude Powers and Vernon Wallace, the Three Gerstorf Sisters, Frances Stein, Coly Worth and Maxine Lewis, and the girls of the ensemble. Exhibitions of this dance done in ballroom style will be given by the entire company during the finale of the revue.

Dance Boat Starts Off on Afternoon Sailings

In response to a demand for afternoon ocean tea dances, the steamer Mayflower will hereafter sail Thursday and Saturday afternoons for a three-hour trip around Boston Harbor. Music is furnished by the "Seven Jolly Tars." The ship will leave Rowes Wharf at 2:30 and return at 5:30.

Each evening there will be dancing during the three-hour ride from 8:30 to 11:30. The course is along the North Shore to Marblehead out to Minot's Light off Scituate, along the outside route to Nantasket, Hemberton and thence back to Boston.

Brilliant Talent to Show in New "Follies" Cast

The Ziegfeld Follies, the twenty-first of the series, starring Eddie Cantor, opens next Tuesday evening at the Colonial. The cast includes Andrew Tombes, James Duffy, Irene Delroy, Fanny Watson, Franklin Pangborn, the Brox Sisters, Claire Luce, Frances Upton, Phil Ryley, Chamberlain and Hines, Lora Foster, Ruth Etting, William Powers, Les Chezzi Brothers, Dan Healy, Denova and Orloff, The Ingenues, a girl orchestra, and sixteen Albertina Rasch solo dancers. Irving Berlin wrote the music and lyrics for the Follies. Sammy Lee staged the dances, and Joseph Urban designed the scenery. John Harwood contributed the dialogue. The entire production is under the personal direction of Florenz Ziegfeld.

Looking Ahead

AUGUST 6—
Leona Earl in "Rain" at the Gayety.

AUGUST 8—
Frances White and Fritzi Scheff in "Bye, Bye, Bonnie" at the Wilbur.

AUGUST 15—
George Cohan's "The Baby Cyclone," with Grant Mitchell, at the Hollis.
"Half a Widow," a new musical comedy, at the Shubert.

SEPTEMBER 5—
Eddie Dowling in "Honeymoon Lane" at the Tremont.

SEPTEMBER 12—
George Cohan's musical play, "The Merry Malones" at the Colonial.

All of a Sudden

OLD TIMER AT SCOLLAY

When an actor can say that he worked in pictures for the Mutoscope Company he can rightfully call himself an "old timer," as the Mutiscope Company was the first organization in this country to make "movies," later changed to the Biograph Company.

He was born in 1869 in Milford, Conn., and started traveling at the age of about 10 years. Since that time he has seen most of the United States and Europe; in fact, he has been in most parts of the world.

THE ACTOR'S ARTFUL AID, HIS EYES

By EDDIE CANTOR
Star of Ziegfeld Follies at the Colonial

If you are blessed by nature with a pair of roving eyes, you can turn yourself into a comedian over night.

Certainly in my own personal experience I have found that my eyes have been very useful to me, and I hope I will not be considered unduly vain for saying so. My reference, though a personal one, is purely technical. For I am absolutely convinced that the projection of humor over the footlights is very intimately concerned with the powers of a comedian's eyes.

Eddie Cantor

Say, for instance, that I am striving to tell a story of how some one picked my pockets. No matter how pathetic I may make my voice sound in describing my loss, one woebegone look from my eyes gives the final punch over the footlights.

As a matter of fact, I have tried out this theory by means of pantomime and I have discovered that I can actually carry the comedy of a whole scene without a single line of dialogue, simply by registering different expressions of the eyes.

Just let me wear a comic suit of clothes and roll my eyes heavenward and I'm considered funny in spite of myself.

I remember many years ago that Anna Held used to sing a song called "I Just Can't Make My Eyes Behave." There was more truth than just a mere lyric and a tune to that song. It summarized the facts, and you'll have to pardon the pun, that the "eyes" have it.

FILM FARE FOR NEW WEEK

METROPOLITAN—(Starting today) Raymond Griffith in "Time to Love" (first run), adapted from the story by Alfred Savoir. Lively French farce concerning the difficulties of a young man approaching matrimony. Others in the cast are Vera Veronina, William Powell, Joseph Swickard and Alfred Sabato. Frank Tuttle directed. A Paramount picture. On the stage, Frank Cambria's fantasy, "Non-Stop to Mars," and Gene Rodemich and band.

LOEW'S STATE—Patsy Ruth Miller in "Painting the Town" (first run), based on an original screen story by Harry O. Hoyt. Comedy drama of a homespun wisecre and a sophisticated show girl. Also in the cast are Glenn Tryon, George Fawcett, Charles Girard and Max Ascher. William Craft directed. A Universal picture. On the stage, Sissle and Blake, late stars of "Shuffle Along."

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—John Gilbert in "12 Miles Out," dramatic yarn of bootleggers, hijackers and the gentle methods of each. Others are Ernest Torrence, Joan Crawford, Bert Roach, Eileen Percy and Tom O'Brien. Jack Conway directed. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. Also vaudeville.

SCOLLAY AND FENWAY—Ralph Ince in "Not for Publication" (first run), adapted from "The Temple of the Giants" by Robert Wells Ritchie. Melodrama involving newspapers, politics and love. Others are Jola Mendez, Tom McGuire and Rex Lease. Ralph Ince directed. An FBO picture. Also vaudeville. The companion picture at the Fenway until Wednesday is "Rolled Stockings." Starting Wednesday, "Barbed Wire" and "Is Zat So?" will be shown.

OLYMPIA—(Starting tomorrow) Lewis Stone in "The Prince of Headwaiters" (first run), adapted from the story by Viola Shore and Garrett Fort. Human interest drama of paternal love and sacrifice. Others are Priscilla Bonner, Ana Rork, Robert Agnew and Lilyan Tashman. John Francis Dillon directed. A First National picture. Also vaudeville.

MODERN AND BEACON—(Starting today) Gary Cooper in "The Last Outlaw" (first run), adapted from the story by Richard Allen Gates. Drama of the old West. Betty Jewell and Jack Luden in support. Arthur Rosson directed. A Paramount picture. Also Olive Borden in "The Secret Studio" (first run), adapted from Hazel Livingston's story which ran serially in the Boston Evening American. Ben Bard in support. Victor Schertzinger directed. A William Fox picture. Also Sissle and Blake and others in Vitaphone.

NEW BOSTON—(Starting tomorrow) "Rich But Honest" (first run), adapted from the story by Arthur Somers Roche. Comedy drama of a modern girl who quits clerking, tries the stage and then faces the quandary of marriage—whether to a rich admirer or to the boy back home. The cast includes J. Farrell McDonald, Nancy Nash, Tyler Brooke, Ted McNamara and Marjorie Bebee. Albert Ray directed. A William Fox picture. Also vaudeville.

NOTHING BUT ICE CREAM WILL DO

"Well, how do you like California?"

This question, repeatedly and invariably asked of newcomers to Hollywood, has been answered by Vera Voronina, Russian beauty here under contract to play in Paramount pictures.

Vera Veronina

"Ah, Hollywood is Paradise," Miss Voronina through an interpreter told Raymond Griffith recently when she started working as leading woman in his new comedy, "Time to Love," which starts today at the Metropolitan.

He doubted her sincerity.

"Tell her I won't tell anybody what she says," he replied to the interpreter. "Tell her I want the truth."

"She says she means it," was the reply. "She says, 'Hollywood is Paradise. Would it not be after the Bolsheviki?'"

Miss Voronina referred to the persecution which caused her flight to Vienna, where she played in her first picture and won the UFA contract that later took her to German and Swedish studios. But the original conversation brought up further questions as to her new environment.

"Ask Miss Voronina what has impressed her most since she came here," Griffith told the interpreter.

Ten minutes later he was able to start relaying her voluble answer.

Ice cream—in dishes, in cones, in sandwiches, in anything—seemed to be the most impressive American novelty.

Another Sadie

LEONA EARL will start the season at the Gayety on Saturday, August 6th, as the Sadie Thompson of the drama "Rain."

COOPER HITS HIGH SPOTS

One year ago Cooper was an unknown Hollywood extra. Today he is Paramount's newest star, to be seen now at the Modern and Beacon in his second starring vehicle, "The Last Outlaw." Featured with him in this picture are Jack Luden, Betty Jewel and Flash, the Wonder Horse.

Cooper's rise has been phenomenal. He arrived in California on Thanksgiving Day, 1924, determined on a career as a commercial artist. He asked to be allowed to draw for advertising agencies; they let him try to sell display space. His career lasted just three months.

HUMBLE NUT MAKES WAY TO FILM

"The humble nut, yclept the pea,
Makes all hands lose their dignity."

Consider the peanut. Its origin a mole-hill, it has the power to move mountains. What elephant will not strain at its chains for a single goober-pea? What would the circus be without peanuts? A ball game? Revere Beach?

It remains for a motion picture company to pay homage to the lowly peanut and to dedicate a costly production in its honor.

"Painting the Town," an hilarious farce comedy being shown Monday at the State, takes its cue from the universal appeal of a sack of peanuts. The hero, Glenn Tryon, wins the title of "the peanut kid" by his habitual munching of peanuts throughout the picture. He wins his way in the film story largely by his lavish distribution of peanuts at critical moments.

Little Tots Featured in "Norumbega Follies"

To the average person, dancing is considered hard work. Even experienced performers tire quickly. But child dancers never think of fatigue. There will be 96 of them in the Norumbega Follies which will be presented next week. These children—among whom little Dolly Edmonds of Quincy is the star—can no more help dancing than they can help breathing. They are products of dancing schools all over Greater Boston.

Dolly Edmonds

Some of the youngsters are but six years old, while others are seven and eight. Before they could perform in a public place it was necessary to obtain the consent of the city fathers of Newton. This was done and rehearsals started. The children are looking forward to their performances with the greatest zeal.

Cohan's New Music Play to Be Produced in Hub

Rehearsals will be started on Monday in New York for George M. Cohan's newest music play, "The Merry Malones." The principals include Robinson Newold, Arthur Deagon, Edna Whistler, Dorothy Whitmore and Ina Haywood.

"The Merry Malones" will have its premiere at the Colonial on Monday evening, September 5th, and after an engagement of three weeks here will dedicate the new Erlanger Theatre in West 44th street, New York City.

SMILES AND FROWNS FROM DOWNTOWN FIRST RUN FILMS

A GENTLE REMINDER for William Powell that he has a duel on his hands with Ray (High Hat) Griffith in "Time to Love," at the Metropolitan. As far as Mr. Powell is concerned it seems more like "time to leave."

"RICH BUT HONEST" is the title of the movie in which this touching scene appears. In it Ted McNamara registers ardent affection for Marjorie Beebe and hopes that his manly charms are not entirely lost upon this blonde and fetching vis-a-vis. None but the fair deserve the brave! (Boston).

Film Futures

AUGUST 6—
Arlette Marschal in "Moon of Israel" at the Metropolitan.

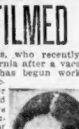
AUGUST 7—
Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "Firemen Save My Child," at the Olympia, Scollay and Fenway.
Phyllis Haver in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" at the New Boston.

AUGUST 8—
Jean Hersholt in "Alias the Deacon" at Loew's State.

AUGUST 13—
Adolphe Menjou in "Service for Ladies" at the Metropolitan.

GEORGE ADE COMEDY TO BE FILMED

Marion Davies, who recently returned to California after a vacation in New York, has begun work on her next production, "The Fair Co-Ed," based upon the famous George Ade musical comedy of the same name.



Several of the scenes will be filmed in and about Pomona College, Pomona, Cal., where Miss Davies and other members of her company are now located.

Johnnie Mack Brown, former halfback of the University of Alabama football team, and who recently came to a long term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has been engaged for the leading role opposite Miss Davies.

Brown came to Hollywood about six months ago and has been playing small bits at the studios. He first attracted the attention of motion picture executives about two years ago when he was playing halfback for the University of Alabama. The team traveled to Los Angeles where it defeated the University of Southern California during the holiday season.

HARD BOILED SERGEANT NOW FIGHT MANAGER

Edmund Lowe, after immortalizing himself as Sergeant Quirt in "What Price Glory," got so tough his victuals began to taste bitter. Alfred E. Green, casting for "Is Zat So?" in which George O'Brien is featured as the boxer, decided Lowe was "just the type." So he made Eddie into a hard-boiled fight manager, with a trick haircut and everything. Insiders maintain that "Hap" Hurley is even tougher and more comical than the incorrigible Quirt. "Is Zat So?" will play at the Fenway next week.

SPECIAL SHOWING FOR SPITALNY AT ORPHEUM

While Phil Spitalny was announced as saying adieu at the State last week, he has been specially engaged at Loew's Orpheum next week. This is his last appearance here this season. He goes from Boston to Baltimore, where he stays for several weeks, then to Washington, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and back to his old stand at the Allen Theatre in Cleveland.

Spitalny's style of stage presentation is distinctive. The utilization of lights and stage effects to build up a musical climax is unique among jass bands.

Bowdoin Square

"Captain Salvation," one of the best film thrillers of the year, will be the featured attraction at the Bowdoin Square next week. The cast features Lars Hanson, Ernest Torrence, Pauline Starke and Gertrude Olmstead. The companion picture is "The Valley of Hell," with Francis McDonald and Edna Murphy. Short films and a bill of vaudeville complete the bill.

Schofield Returning

Charles L. Schofield, who was stage director at the St. James, will return to the company in the Fall when the company opens Labor Day week. He will also portray various comic roles in the same manner which made him such a favorite last season.

The Howard

The old Howard Athenaeum, known as one of the leading burlesque houses of the country, will open on Monday, August 22, playing as the first attraction, Harry Fields and his "Sugar Babies" burlesque.

VAUDEVILLE CHANGES

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Phil Spitalny and his band; Milton Berle, "The Wayward Youth"; Fred C. Hagan and company in a comedy playlet, "The Bear Cat"; Jessie Miller, cornetist, and the Three Vitos, eccentrics. The feature photoplay in "12 Miles Out" with John Gilbert and Ernest Torrence.

* * *

B. F. KEITH'S—Marion Harris, musical comedy star; The Meistersingers, triple male quartet; Libby and Sparrow, dancing comedians, in "Tickling Technique"; Barto and Mann, "The Laugh Kings"; Foley and Leture in "Musical Comedy Bits"; Rodero and Maley in a comedy act, and others.

* * *

OLYMPIA—Brown and Demonte revue, "A La Dixie"; Thirty Pink Toes in "An Untold Tale of the Arabian Nights"; Judson Cole in "A Humorous Interlude"; George Jinks in "For the Land's Sake," and others.

* * *

SCOLLAY—"A Musical Comedy Version of Broadway's Successes," with the Mary and Gray Sextette; Foster and Seaman in a comedy act called "In Cuba"; Hap Hazard in "Watch Your Step"; Bennett and Rock in "A Telephone Book of Wrong Numbers"; Three Little Miss in Blue, songstresses, and others.

* * *

NEW BOSTON—The Musical Comedy Skit, "Ma Cherie," with a company of singers and dancers; Rosemont Troubadours, singing organization; Jack Clifford, in a song and dance novelty; Holden and King in a comedy skit; Billy Miller and sister in a novelty turn, and others.

YOUNGSTERS NAMES OF NOTE IN FILM PLAY

Children of movie stars and others celebrated on stage and screen play important parts in the comedy-drama, "The Prince of Headwaiters," new film at the Olympia.

Lincoln Stedman, 21-second-trouper, hundred-pound jovial son of Myrtle Stedman, has the part of a college boy. With him in a similar part is Cleve Moore, brother of Colleen Moore.

Beth, the girl, is played by Ann Rork, daughter of the producer, and remembered in "The Blonde Saint" and "The Notorious Lady."

The "Prince of Headwaiters" is Jane Murfin's adaptation of the Liberty Magazine story by Garrett Fort.

COPLEY WILL RE-OPEN FOR SHORT SUMMER SEASON

E. E. Clive will open the Copley Theatre on Saturday evening, August 13, for a brief supplementary season. The opening attraction will be "Murray Hill," a three-act farce written by Leslie Howard. Its engagement at the Copley will mark the first performance of the piece on any stage.

The run of the play at the Copley is for a single week, prior to its New York production. Mr. Clive is planning to introduce a prominent New York actor in the leading role.

RAILROAD EXCURSION TO OLD ORCHARD BEACH

Maine, a Summer playground, and Old Orchard, its most famous beach, will be the destination of a Boston and Maine excursion on Sunday, a week from tomorrow, leaving North Station at 8:15 a. m. (E.S.T.) The return train leaves Old Orchard at 6:25 p. m.

A big, wide, sandy beach makes bathing and lying about in the sun a pleasure, while for entertainment there are roller coasters and all the many other devices that lend life, color and gayety to such a place.

SHIPPING MEN BACK HEARST MARINE PLAN

That the United States should have a merchant marine second to none, and that the speech of Governor Brewster of Maine before the conference of Governors at Mackinac Island, Mich., for the development of our own shipping, was an eloquent appeal for the most needed service that can be given the American people, are two of the highlights of today's comments on the Maine executive's address.

CAPTAIN T. A. MILLER, Director for New England, United States Shipping Board Merchant Fleet Corporation says: "I regard Governor Brewster's speech as an eloquent appeal for the most needed service that can be given the American people. That we need a merchant marine is undeniable and that it should be second to none is the opinion of every seafaring man."

CAPTAIN W. A. HINDON, in charge of operations for the New England District, United States Shipping Board—No clearer or more concise statement of the necessity for a great and permanent merchant marine in this country has been made in a decade. Whether in accomplishing this it be necessary for the government to grant a subsidy or to have government operation of our merchant ships is of secondary importance. Foreign propaganda spread by paid lobbyists are working hard to prevent its establishment. What greater reason do we need to stimulate our interest in so vital a matter?

EDMUND A. CONNELL, Boston passenger agent for the Dollar Line 'round the world steamship—It is pleasing to note that public-spirited men, the type of Governor Brewster and Mr. Hearst, are giving their time and knowledge to bring to a head the much needed agitation for an American merchant marine, second to none. Concerted action by an association of men of this type should and will be the means of making the American flag a familiar sight in large foreign ports instead of the novelty it now is. Success to the project means success to America and men will fight for success if aroused to the proper pitch.

Eve Demands Clothes In 'Garden of Eden'

By LUCELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—Usually where there is smoke there is fire. So I was reasonably sure the gossip that Corinne Griffith was not particularly happy over John Considine's supervision of her production, "The Garden of Eden," was true.

I talked with Miss Griffith on the telephone and she said one bone of contention had been a scene in Hans Kraley's script where she is supposed to appear minus raiment. She absolutely refused to do this, even though the scene were played in shadow.

I had thought, somehow, that Miss Griffith was tied up on a long-term contract with United Artists. She tells me this is an erroneous idea—that she has agreed to make only one picture and that, as soon as she finishes "The Garden of Eden" she will form her own company.

The chances that she will release again through United Artists are remote.

There has been considerable gossip that John Considine and Walter Morosco, husband and manager of Miss Griffith, are as far apart as the poles in their ideas for the production. Although John Considine denied vehemently there had been any trouble, Miss Griffith was less emphatic in her assurance that everything was amicable.

His most recent demonstration was a request that Dorothy Revier play an encore as his leading lady. She had finished "The Drop Quick" and he wanted her to be his heroine in "The Noose."

However, Harry and Jack Cohn had signed her to play opposite Conway Tearle in "Temptation Island"—and a contract is a contract.

I don't know how Dick worked it, but I was told Dorothy Sebastian had been borrowed from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for "Temptation Island," and Miss Revier would remain at First National.

I hope "Temptation Island" gives Dorothy Sebastian the right opportunity. She is consistently good on the screen, no matter how small the part is. Gibson Gowland, as usual the wicked man in the films, will play a heavy in support.

NEIL HART, who was well known as a Western hero, has collected $100,000 and set out to stage a come-back. Mr. Hart must have wonderful confidence in his own drawing power for he hasn't even so much as a release for his first picture, "The Crimson Brand."

I understand the cattlemen think well enough of the Hart prospects, however, to contribute financially. Lucille Irwin, who was described as a society girl, plays the part of the girl Mr. Hart rescues.

BOSTON VACATION EXODUS SWAMPS RAILROADS

A landslide is awaited by officials at the North and South Stations today as thousands of vacationists return from their outings at the seashore and mountains and thousands of others start out on the annual two weeks' vacation.

Being the middle Saturday of the Summer season and August, the most popular month for vacations approaching, the peak of the Summer travel is expected.

The next great avalanches will come at Labor Day when the bronzed vacationists return to their city homes. Bus terminals, steamship companies and the interstate highways will also feel the burden of increased travel with the locomotive numbers who use those modes of transportation in returning from the country.

Practically all of the through trains to distant points of New England and the West are booked solid for today and tomorrow, railroad officials reported. Extra sections have been added to a number of the through trains while extra coaches, sleeping and parlor cars will be attached to trains if it is found that accommodations are cramped.

The Halifax and St. John trains and the Pine Tree limited leave the North Station today in extra sections. Extra equipment will be added to the Mountaineer, it is announced.

Practically all of the trains to the Cape to Newport and the Berkshires have been sold out and as many extra cars added as the locomotive can carry. Boston & Albany and New Haven authorities report a record volume of traffic for this season of the year.

stand, and the law will take its course.

No clamor or threats will influence him there either.

Fate has forced upon Governor Fuller a duty difficult and dangerous, but he possesses the qualities that his responsibilities demand.

In a bank in Tokio lies $500,000 worth of solid gold, nobody knows who owns it, nobody claims it. Many a young man will say "I would do anything to get that $500,000 gold, that nobody claims."

Young gentlemen should remember that in their own brains, in their resources of patience, common sense and energy, $500,000 in real money and more, may be found if they want to work. They needn't do "ANYTHING" to get it, just work and be steady.

interest and the care used in selecting pilots, plane and equipment, I, among many, am following every single detail of the wonderful effort.'

While the flight of "Old Glory" is expected to add much to the sum of aviation knowledge, its primary purpose is more in the nature of a peace project, extending the hand of good fellowship from the United States to Italy.

CHRISTENED TOMORROW.

In this connection statesmen of both nations will be present at Curtiss Field, Long Island, tomorrow afternoon, when the big silver Fokker will be christened with fitting ceremonies.

They will extend their blessings and goodwill to the ship and to its pilots, Lloyd Bertaud and James DeWitt Hill of the United States Air Mail, both of whom were in the Army Flying Corps during the war.

F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of War in charge of aviation, will be on hand representing the government.

"I will be delighted to attend the christening of 'Old Glory' on Sunday afternoon," he wired.

The Italian Ambassador to the United States, Giacomo de Martino, will represent his country and particularly Premier Mussolini. His telegram reads:

"I am happy to inform you I will attend the christening of 'Old Glory' and that Signor Mussolini has directed me to represent him at the ceremony."

The air forces of Italy will be present in the person of Commander Silvio Scaroni, air attache with the Italian embassy in Washington.

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett of Brooklyn Navy Yard will say a few words for the Navy, and Major-General James H. McRae, commandant of the Second Corps Area, with headquarters on Governor's Island, will do the same for the army.

An Italian girl, Theresa Tassoni, American born, who will typify the spirit of friendship between America and the home of her fathers, will christen the big silver ship, and following the introduction of the fliers, they will take it aloft so that all may have a glimpse.

'Old Glory's' First Test Flights Are Successful

New York, July 30.—"Old Glory" made two successful test flights preparatory to its trip from New York to Rome and return.

On the initial flight, Bernt Balchen, who is test pilot for Anthony Fokker, designer of the plane, flew alone.

On the second flight Lloyd Bertaud, who with James DeWitt Hill, will pilot "Old Glory" on its trans-Atlantic flight, and a New York newspaper editor accompanied Balchen.

The plane made a speed of 125 miles an hour, flying over Manhattan, Brooklyn and Hoboken at an altitude of 1,000 feet, Balchen said:

"The ship handles perfectly. The controls are very easy. The climbing ability of the ship is wonderful. I have never listened to a better motor."

DIDN'T CONVINCE SNAKE HE WAS A "CHILD OF GOD"

Dunn, La., July 30 (I.N.S.).—Permitting a moccasin snake to bite his arm in an effort to convince his congregation that no harm would come to him because he was a "child of God," the Rev. Bob Williams, pastor of the Apostolic Church here, today was unable to use his arm as a result of the poison. He refuses to call a physician.

WRECKED SCHOONER IS TOWED TO SOUTH BOSTON

The wreck of the four-masted Boston schooner Edna McKnight was towed to the Boston Molasses Wharf at South Boston from Mystic Docks, where she completed unloading her cargo of lumber. Whether the vessel will be repaired or consigned to the scrap heap has not been decided by the owners, Crowell & Thurlow of No. 131 State street.

HUB DEPORTEE GETS 12 YEARS

Rome, July 30 (I.N.S.).—Manlio Chiossone, who was expelled from the United States last January on charges of having landed illegally, was sentenced today to twelve years' imprisonment.

Chiossone was charged with having defamed Italy during his stay in the United States. He was convicted on the basis of a report made by the Italian consul in Boston.

Chiossone and a companion were arrested in East Boston last December, after they were found fraudulently soliciting funds from the residents of East Boston by the police. Chiossone and his companion claimed they were collecting money for the "poor of Italy." When the police investigated they found the men were in the country illegally and they were deported.

Gets Life in Slaying

Springfield, July 30 (A.P.).—Antoine W. La Fogg, 21, of Westfield was sentenced to life imprisonment today after pleading guilty to killing Leon J. Pratt of Russell, August 28, 1926. Pratt was beaten by La Fogg in a quarrel over division of the proceeds of a berry-picking expedition.

the swamp. Come on over.' She replied: 'All right, I'm coming.'

"She must have taken what she belived to be a short cut and got lost. I heard her cal lagain and replied several times. Suddenly it lost. I heard her call again and receding. I started in her direction and for a minute it seemed as though I were close to her.

"Then the voice started to go away again. We kept 'Yoo-hooing' back and forth, but when I didn't find her I decided perhaps it would be better to go into the road and blow the automobile horn. I did so for half an hour steadily. Then I went back to a road in the woods and walked a mile and a half, still calling out.

"I heard Mrs. Murphy's voice about 1:45, and for ten minutes I could hear her and then the voice died away completely. When I could hear her no longer I rushed to a telephone and called the State police."

Sergeant Oliver LeBlanc with ten troopers took up the search, which was in charge of Chief of Police Walter A. Hill of Wilmington. The posse was augmented by fifty Boy Scouts and sixty-five cadets.

A German police dog, so-called, named Zielbert Vos Blaisenberg, the property of George Henneult of North Easton, was taken to the woods, and after being allowed to scent an old shoe worn by the missing woman, started into the underbrush. Twice the dog made wide circles, each time ending on the road, where he lost the trail.

Late this afternoon calls were sent out for volunteer searchers in Reading, Wilmington, North Woburn and Winchester to take the place of the Boy Scouts who were forced to return to camp. The response was immediate, citizens hurrying to the woods in automobiles and on foot. It was reported two more dogs were on the way.

1 DEAD, 1 DYING IN TRUCK CRASH

Manchester, N. H., July 30.—One fireman was killed, another is dying and five others suffered injuries here today when two speeding fire trucks crashed together at the corner of Union and Lake streets while responding to an alarm for fire in a dump.

The dead:

Louis Cote, of Hose 1, married.

Dying:

Alfred Paris, of Hose 1, at Sacred Heart Hospital, with concussion of the brain and fractured skull.

Seriously injured:

Edward Raymond, Hose 1, at Sacred Heart Hospital, broken leg.

Napoleon Gauvin, Engine 3, Sacred Heart Hospital, concussion of the brain and multiple contusions.

Ernest Whitcomb, Hose 1, Sacred Heart Hospital, concussion of the brain.

Frank Harvey, Hose 1, Eliot Hospital, concussion of the brain.

The fire to which the trucks were responding did little damage, being confined to rubbish piles that did not endanger surrounding property.

Lucky Flood Children! Santa Claus Coming in August, too

Little Rock, Ark., July 30 (A.P.). —Santa Claus is coming to Arkansas this year despite the flood and because of that disaster which darkened the lives of hundreds of children, he will make an extra trip, coming in August as well as at Christmas.

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross has notified the State rehabilitation authorities that two shipments, one to McGehee and one to Marked Tree, will arrive during August bearing toys for children in about 200 families.

British Discover Proper Place for Woman

London, July 30 (I.N.S.)—England is the only country which knows the proper place for women, according to Canon Dawson, headmaster of Brighton College. Speaking here today he said of woman:

"In France she's a plaything.

"In Germany she's a drudge.

"In America she's a goddess.

"But in England she's a partner."

CLOUDY SUNDAY IS PREDICTED

True to the recent week-end type, the weather again will revert over Sunday to cloudy skies and showers, despite the confident hopes of the local bureau that cool, fair conditions were here to stay.

The prediction is based on the threatening approach of two storm areas, one in the Dakotas and the other developing in the central southwestern States.

Mill Agent Resigns

Lawrence, July 30 (A.P.).—Charles T. Wilde, agent of the Brightwood Manufacturing Company in North Andover, resigned his position today. He had been connected with the corporation for thirty years and will be succeeded by William Helliwell, formerly of the American Woolen Company.

Found Dead in Bed

Arthur P. Bernard, a lodger in a Shawmut avenue house, was found dead in bed today. The body was removed to the Southern Mortuary where Medical Examiner Timothy Leary is conducting an investigation. Bernard is said to have left his wife and four children in Manchester, N. H., to seek work here.

STARTS WAR ON MAINE TRUCKS

Aroused over the complaints that Massachusetts auto trucks of more than one ton are being held up by the Maine officials and compelled to register the minute they pass into that State, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin has sent a letter to all Massachusetts police chiefs on the northern border, calling upon them to compel every Maine truck found in this State to register before allowing them to proceed.

"They are showing no mercy to operators of Massachusetts trucks in the State of Maine, and I hope you see to it that owners of Maine trucks obey the law," Registrar Goodwin wrote. "Maine trucks are coming into this State, competing with Massachusetts trucks, and paying nothing for their registration," he added.

GARDNER GIRL ELOPER AND MAN ARE HELD

Worcester, July 30.—A Gardner girl and a Fitchburg husband, who eloped last Fall and were found living in Worcester after wandering as far as Florida, find their paths diverging.

The girl, Loretta Canty, 16, of Clapp street, Gardner, held on charges of misconduct and being a stubborn child, was taken to Memorial Hospital from her cell in police headquarters. She is in a serious condition and could not appear in court.

The man, Daniel Webster, 22, of Flat Rock road, Fitchburg, was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury when he appeared in court to answer to the misconduct charge. He pleaded guilty.

OPERATOR GUILTY IN AUTO DEATH CASE

Springfield, July 30.—Francis X. Walters of No. 9 Donald avenue, Westfield, operator of an automobile which shortly after 11 o'clock the night of April 19 was in collision with a trolley car in this city, resulting in the death of John Z. Gray, a passenger in the auto, is found by Judge Wallace R. Heady to have beep responsible for the death.

Worcester, July 29.—Paul Bedard, 2 years old, of No. 40 Chandler street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bedard, died in City Hospital of injuries when he fell 15 feet from a second story window.

Clemenceau Best Man At Wedding of His Grandson

Louveciennes, Department of Seine-Et-Oise, France, July 30 (A.P.).—Georges Clemenceau was best man today at the wedding of his grandson and namesake, Georges Clemenceau, to Mlle. Jeanne Lucie Roseneau. The ceremony was private.

The eighty-five-year-old wartime Premier was in fine spirits today. He walked the entire distance from Chateau Louveciennes to the town hall.

"The Tiger" was in good humor. He chatted with his neighbors and returned the salutes of spectators.

The father of young Clemenceau's bride is owner of the Chateau Louveciennes, which once was given to Countess Du Barry by Louis XV.

REYNOLDS HELD IN 'EXTORTION'

Thomas Reynolds of Haviland street, Back Bay, was arraigned in Brighton District Court today on a charge of attempting to extort $1,000 from Jacob Block of Harrison avenue, Brookline.

Police allege they have a threatening note that Reynolds is alleged to have written Block, demanding the money.

Judge Dean held Reynolds for a further hearing on August 4.

Reynolds was arrested recently after Freddy Warren, a boxer who lived at the same address, was taken to the City Hospital suffering from burns from which he later died. The police were unable to learn how the boxer suffered the injuries. Reynolds was finally arraigned on a minor charge and appealed a sentence of a month in the House of Correction.

RS-1 OFF TODAY ON TRIP OVER NEW YORK STATE

Lakehurst, N. J., July 30 (I. N. S.).—The semi-rigid army dirigible RS-1, under the command of Lieut. Col. John Paegelow, is expected to take off from the naval air station here sometime today for New York city. From there, it will follow a course up the Hudson river, and is to pass over West Point, Troy and Albany, landing in Buffalo tomorrow morning.

The RS-1 will take off from there for Dayton, O., St. Louis, Mo., and finally will land at Scott Field, Ill.

POLICE INVESTIGATING GOWN SHOP ROBBERY

The police of Division 16 are investigating a robbery reported in the gown shop of Victoria Romeo, Stuart street. The proprietress told the police two men, one armed, entered the shop shortly before 8 o'clock, and after one had struck her, they took two coats and 34 dresses and departed. The police found a man who was seated in a parked automobile near the store at that time, who said he saw two men leave the gown shop, but said they carried no dresses and there was no commotion.

Marquis de Flers Dies

Vittel, France, July 30 (A.P.).—Marquis Robert De Flers, one of France's most distinguished authors and a member of the French Academy, died here today after a brief illness, aged fifty-five.

FORD, 64, TESTS NEW CAR FOR MARKET

"Most of these rumors," he said, "have been misleading. There's the matter of price, for example. We didn't build this new Ford to fit a price, but we certainly are not abandoning the low priced field."

Referring to the trade war rumors within the automobile industry, Mr. Ford continued:

"We have no desire to take business away from any automobile manufacturer. Our thought has always been that the automobile business is prosperous only when all makers of good cars are busy.

"If any particular automobile company's success meant putting out of business some other automobile manufacturer, there would be no gain in that; it would only mean putting thousands of men out of work, letting valuable power go to waste, maybe throwing a great industry out of balance."

RIDICULES "SATURATION"

Mr. Ford would not discuss the details of his new car, but said he expected to announce a complete description within the next few weeks. He said he had been experimenting with new and improved types of automobiles for several years and had actually built many new experimental models.

"But it is one thing to build an experimental model in a laboratory and another very different thing to retool the biggest manufacturing plants in the world for mass production of new models," he said.

"We have taken our time to design and build this new Ford car so that it will be just what a good automobile should be in this day."

Mr. Ford declared his organization had built 15,000,000 model T cars in less than nineteen years and expected to surpass that mark in th coming ytars.

He ridiculed the idea that the saturation point in the industry is in prospect.

"There are parts of the world where there are many families without automobiles. There are some parts of the world where whole families have never seen an automobile," he said.

When asked if he regretted the passing of the old Model T car upon whic hhis huge fortune was founded, Ford said:

"We mustn't forget that it was the Model T that gave us plants in which to build the new cars. The old are built the experience and earned th emoney that made the new car possible."

100 MILLION A YEAR.

Mr. Ford said that during the nineteen years of manufacture, the model T paid salaries and wages to the total of $1,970,414,172.29 or an average of one hundred million dollars a year, in addition he said dealers have paid salaries for service employes totaling $1,333,300,000 and the same dealers have paid other employes such as salesmen and office employes $380,000 a year. Authorized repair shops affiliated with the organization have paid salaries and wages totaling $1,778,400 a year.

Mr. Ford estimated that purchase of materials by the company in this country, Canada, and abroad during the last nineteen years involved an expenditure of $4,868,427,-012.32.

The company paid $547,000,000 in taxes during the period of its manufacture of the Model T car.

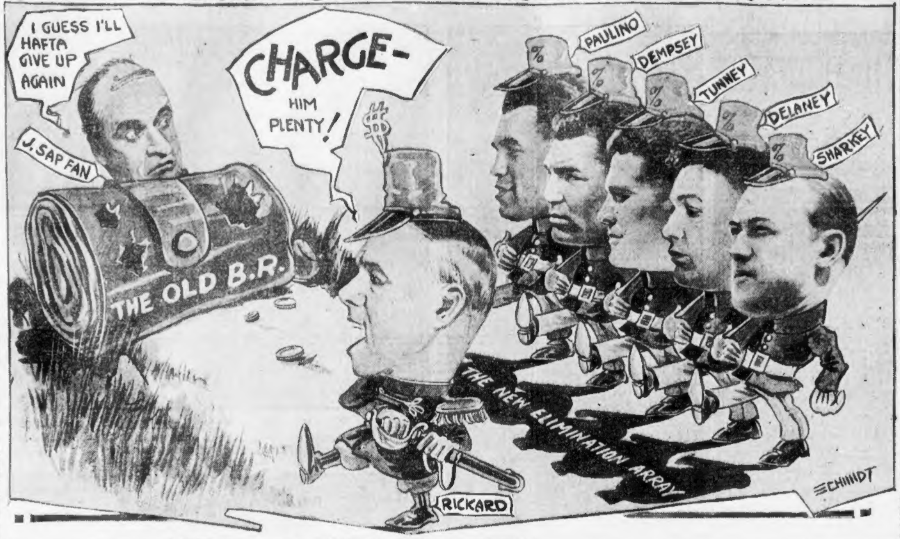
THE CHARGE OF THE FIGHT BRIGADE



WRIGHT IS ONE UP AT 18TH HOLE

Former State Champ Leads Whitcomb in Morning Round for the N. E. Amateur Title

By BILL GRIMES

Worcester Country Club, Worcester, Mass., July 30.—Playing keystone golf, Fred J. Wright, Jr., of Albemarle and Billy Whitcomb, the local star, stumbled through the first 18 holes of the New England amateur championship finals here this morning, and the former was 1 up at the end of the round.

Although Fred Wright's medal was 78, he played poorly. With but very few exceptions, Wright was in trouble on every hole. He was still hooking badly off the tees and now and again he went into the rough with his irons.

A remarkable iron shot to the 5th green proved a great stimulant to Wright this morning. His hooked tee shots had his nerves on edge and when he curled one off the first tee into the brook, he was very much peeved, but he was himself again after the next shot.

Freddie took a penalty stroke to lift from the brook and then whaled into a mid iron shots ever made. He followed up this shot with a fine putt which rimmed the cup and as Whitcomb was trapped with his second, Freddie a halve after being apparently out of the hole.

WRIGHT 3 DOWN ON 8TH.

Whitcomb started off with a rush and he had Wright three down on the 8th tee but he then encountered a wild streak and Wright had squared the match when he walked from the 10th green.

Wright then began to set the pace, which proved too fast for the local pride and the Albemarler was three up at the fifteenth, but Whitcomb came back, winning the sixteenth and eighteenth and he was only one down.

Whitcomb lost no time getting out in front, for he took the lead at the first hole. Both were down the fairway with long drives, and although Whitcomb's second appeared to have been topped it sailed through and stopped about six feet from the pin.

Wr[illegible] was over with his second and a[illegible] he chipped dead, it availed him nothing for Whitcomb dropped his for a "birdie" and a win.

Wright got tangled up in the trap to the left of the second fairway from the tee, lost a shot trying to get out and when he finally departed from the hazard he had gained only about fifteen yards.

Fred was still short with his fourth, taking five to get home while Whitcomb was just short of the green in two and chipped on and won the edge, but the best that the former State champion could get was a halve, for Whitcomb put his third dead to the pin and dropped the putt for a four.

FOURTH HOLE HALVED.

Wright hooked his iron off the fourth tee into the rough after Whitcomb had driven the green. Playing over the trap, Freddie was dead to the cup and down with a single putt to halve the hole for Whitcomb took two to get in.

Again Wright hooked, this time from the fifth tee, and his ball landed on the fly in the brook, well short of the tree, with Whitcomb straight down the middle.

Freddie dropped one, and playing that great iron shot, got home. Whitcomb pushed his second into the trap, but got out well with his next one. Wright had a wonderful bid for his "birdie," but the ball refused to drop and they halved with fives. It was a wonderful recovery for Wright.

Wright was on the edge of the sixth green from the tee, but Whitcomb was soft and his ball landed in the hololw to the right, from where he pitched dead and was down in one putt for a halve.

Both were short going to the seventh with the seconds, Wright in the fairway and Whitcomb in the rough to the left of the green.

Wright played a messy approach, just getting on, but Whitcomb popped a niblic to within ten feet of the cup, and after Wright had failed to get his four Billy dropped one for a win, which made his three up.

WRIGHT CATCHES UP.

At this point Whitcomb lost his touch and Wright began to overtake him. At the 8th, they were both trapped, Whitcomb to the right with his ball sitting up pretty, and Wright to the left almost buried and close to the far edge of the hazard.

Whitcomb failed to get out with his first and then playing his third to cleanly went out of bounds into the railroad track. He was on with his next best but Wright had managed to get on with his second and was down with two putts for his first win.

Wright was home going to the 9th with a drive and iron but Whitcomb followed his fine great with a pulled brassie and was not only short but in the rough, taking three to get home and he lost the hole when he missed a long putt for a four.

Whitcomb had dropped two holes and he had reason to be disturbed, but after Wright had messed up another tee shot at the 10th, where he hooked into the woods, hit a tree and caroned back to an opening which gave him a clear shot at the green, he was home with a fine shot.

Evidently Wright's luck was beginning to bother Whitcomb for when Wright chipped dead Whitcomb's putter went democratic and he lost the hole to a 3.

LUCK WITH WRIGHT.

Wright's luck stayed with him through the 11th, where he topped his tee shot and stayed in the rough. His second was low and hit short of the traps, but ran to the right of them and stopped on the edge of the rough, just short of the green.

Whitcomb was on with his second and looked like a winner, but Wright saved himself by laying his opponent a partial stymie to halve the hole with 5s.

Whitcomb got into more trouble at the twelfth, when he put his second in the trap to the right of the green and again exploded too vigorously, going over and down the bank into the rough. Wright was short in two, but had no trouble winning the hole with a 5 for the best that Whitcomb could do was 7.

Whitcomb did a terrible job with his chip from the bank to the right of the thirteenth green, for he ran twenty feet by the cup, and Wright, who had smothered his tee shot to such an extent that he was very short and in the rough, won the hole with a 3 by virtue of a great niblic shot five feet from the can.

WHITCOMB SLIPS.

Whitcomb had another opening at the fourteenth, but was unable to take advantage of it. Wright hit his first tee shot at this hole, being some fifty yards out in front, but after Whitcomb got home with his second

Wright attempted to hook a low iron shot and failing, his ball went into rough and he was short. He chipped on, however, and dropped his putt to halve the hole, as Whitcomb went over with his first putt.

Both played well getting to the 15th green in three, but Whitcomb was away and lost the hole when Wright ran down his putt for a birdie four.

Whitcomb had not won a hole since his 4 on the 7th and he had gone from 3 to 3 down when he reached the 16th tee. Both were right down the middle of this fairway but Wright was short with his second and Whitcomb on. Wright chipped onto within 12 feet of the cup but he was unable to get down and Whitcomb picked up a hole with his 4.

WRIGHT GETS BREAK.

From the 17th tee both drives kicked into the rough to the right and they were short with their second, Whitcomb's shot being very soft but it ran down the hill to the flat and they halved with 5s.

Wright got another break on the 18th, but he offset it by stymieing himself with his approach putt.

Whitcomb played a beautiful second to the 18th green and Wright, from the rough, half topped his but the ball ran up the runway leading to the green and he was on instead of in the trap. Whitcomb made a fine bid for his three, the ball just missing the cup, running by three feet, and directly in line with Wright's putt.

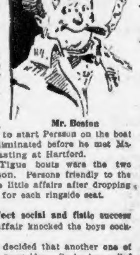
Big Fellows to Have Call With Rickard

By Jack Conway

"WHAT'S Tex Rickard going to do about the heavyweights after he gets the Dempsey-Tunney bout out of the way?"

I clipped Mr. Boston right on the chin with this question as he stepped off the boat from Pemberton this morning.



Mr. Boston

"That's an easy one," drawled the veteran. "Tex will assemble his heavyweight chorus all over again and stage another one of those elimination tournaments.

"It was a great idea when Rickard thought of the elimination affair. As the punch flingers batter each other into temporary oblivion, Tex eliminates the spare cash of the fistic fans. He serves his elimination bouts at rates of from $7.50 to $27.50 for the best ringside seats.

"I was at the Garden last Fall when Rickard staged the first of his elimination battles. He taxed the cash customers $7.70 for the privilege of seeing one Franz Diener of Germany eliminate Knute Hansen of Minnesota. Diener in turn was eliminated by Jimmy Maloney with a $7.70 top.

"The sock went to $11 when Maloney was called upon to eliminate Harry Persson, the Swedish heavyweight. It was worth $11 to start Persson on the boat ride back to Europe. Persson was really eliminated before he met Maloney, as Pat McCarthy gave him quite a pasting at Hartford.

"The Delaney-Maloney and Sharkey-McTigue bouts were the two classic elimination affairs of the indoor season. Persons friendly to the management were allowed to sit in on these little affairs after dropping around at the box office and depositing $22 for each ringside seat.

"THE Sharkey-Maloney bout was a perfect social and fistic success at $22, while the Sharkey-Dempsey affair knocked the boys cockeyed at $27.50 a copy for ringside ducats.

"After counting up the profits, Rickard decided that another one of those little elimination affairs wouldn't be a poor idea. So he has called the boys together and told them to be prepared to start shooting at hostile china two weeks after he gets the Dempsey-Tunney bout out of the way.

"A few old acts will be rung in just so as to give the oldtimers something to talk about. I know Tex would like to stage another Delaney-Maloney bout, especially if the Bridgeport warrior should dispose of Paulino Up-Side-Down when they clash on August 11.

"Paulino, of course, will be invited to the party.

"After some of the young fellows have had their fling, Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey will probably step to bat to tackle the survivors.

"I UNDERSTAND that Sharkey, through Johnny Buckley, his manager, has agreed to box three times at Madison Square Garden during the coming indoor season. Rickard figures that Sharkey will play to capacity crowds every time he enters the ring.

"You will probably see Sharkey battling Paulino and Delaney as part of the day's work. The Boston contender has never hand picked his opponents and doesn't intend to commence doing so now.

"Bill Muldoon, the veteran member of the New York Boxing Commission, and Tex Rickard have both declared since the Dempsey bout that Sharkey will be the next heavyweight champion of the world. Jack is determined to justify the faith Muldoon, Rickard and many others have in him.

"Sharkey will leave today for a vacation in New Hampshire. He'll take things easy for three weeks, after which he will do a little light training. Sharkey's next ring start will take place the latter part of October or early in November after the rumble of the Dempsey-Tunney bout has died down."

RED MEN TO HOLD FIVE MILE ROAD RACE

A five mile road race will be held on Saturday afternoon, August 20th, from Union square, Rockland, to Ridge Hill Grove, West Norwell.

This race will be a feature of the field day and outing of the Southeastern Mass. Red Men's Council of the Improved Order of Red Men.

Suitable prizes will be awarded, open to all registered athletes. Entry blanks and further information may be obtained by communicating with Charles L. Jason, Ash street, Cohasset, Mass.

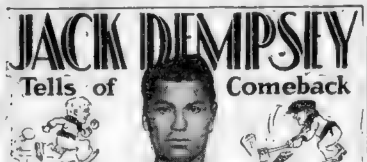
JACK DEMPSEY Tells of Comeback



Dempsey, in Detailed Story of Sharkey Fight, Tells of Blows That Finished Hub Battler—Insists They Were Fair

(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE JACK SHARKEY fight was a tough one—and yet not so tough.

I got away to a mighty poor start. Or maybe, in tribute to Sharkey, I should say that Sharkey got off to a good one.

Anyway that young fellow from Boston took an awful lot of liberties with my chin in that first round and before the bell ended his fun, I had taken quite a few smacks on the old whisker department.

Sure, he shook me up. And he shook me up plenty. But when I got back to my corner I was more confident than I had been before the fight. That may sound strange—but it isn't strange. And the explanation for that is this

The first round of fighting had given me a good line on Sharkey's style of fighting. It had taught me what I should do to avoid his socking me too freely from then on; it taught me also about his defensive weakness. Beyond all that, it proved to me that I could still take a beating—and stand up.

* * *

SHARKEY gave about all he had with both guns in that first round, he gave it to me when he was good and fresh and strong. I knew that as the fight wore on, and he had to take some beating himself that his punches wouldn't have the steam of that first round.

In the second round I played it a bit safe; just kept fiddling and jockeying around a bit to make sure that I had Sharkey figured out as regards his weaknesses and his strength. I decided that my calculations were about right—and in the third round I began to open up.

When I went into that fight it was with two plans, or perhaps I should say alternate plans. I stepped out in the first with the idea of finishing Sharkey in that round—if it possibly could be done.

But Sharkey was a bit too rough and too tough. He had too much fight and too much of the pepper. So I swung around to the other plan which called for beating him down gradually with a body attack until I could just about get him to yelling "uncle."

* * *

IN the third, the fourth and the fifth I kept in close and whenever the chance came, I let him have one shot after another in the body. Occasionally I shot one to his chin to rock him a bit, but most of the time I beat him around the ribs, under the heart or against the liver.

I felt that if that sort of attack were kept up long enough it would slow him up gradually and then I could do a little rushing of my own and find a few open roads to his chin and let fly with some left hooks

When the fifth round of fighting was over, I felt supremely confident of victory. For during that round, when we were in close, I could feel Sharkey sagging under the body smashing. He wasn't quite so tough as he had been earlier, nor did any of his punches have the earlier steam.

* * *

I WANTED to go out in the sixth and try for a kayo then. But my seconds advised me to beat his body for another round before I began to do much swinging for his chin. And I listened to that advice.

Sharkey came out in the sixth, a desperate looking youngster—at least, I figured it that way. I had an idea that he was out to make his last stand in the matter of trying for a knockout victory. Everything he had he tossed into that sixth round effort.

But it gained him nothing.

He rapped me with an uppercut, but beyond jolting my head upward, it did not harm. The sting of his punches was gone. I guess he realized that just about as well as I did.

Certainly, when he went back to his corner after the sixth and flopped into his chair, he didn't look to me like a young man who was nursing very many lingering thoughts about fighting somebody for a world's championship in September

So, as I sat there watching him, I laid my plans for the finish.

* * *

IT was a right hand body smash that had started Fred Fulton down and out: a right hand smash to the body finished Carl Morris; the same punch ruined Jess Willard and it paved the way for victory against Miske and Carpentier and Firpo.

So that's what I planned to hand Sharkey.

I hit him with a right hander soon after the seventh round began. It landed—and it landed in FAIR TERRITORY. Sharkey's guard went down, just as the guard of all the others who have been hit a right hander under the heart have gone down.

And that ended Sharkey.

TEX TO MAKE FIGHT DECISION ON MONDAY

By HARRY MacNAMARA.

Chicago, July 30.—Formal announcement that Chicago will be the site of the world's heavyweight championship match in which Jack Dempsey, the "old" champion, will attempt to knock Gene Tunney, the soldier champion, bowlegged, and thereby regain the title, will be made by "Tex" Rickard Monday.

The site, of course, will be Soldiers' Field and the date will either be Sept. 15 or 22, both dates being a Thursday

Rickard favors Sept. 15 because of the possibility that unfavorable weather may "gum up" the proceeding during the following week Scheduling the combat for a Thursday would make possible two postponements, if necessary, the first to Friday and the second to Saturday

John C. Righeimer, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, has assumed a watchful waiting attitude at his Michigan city Summer home, but indicated by phone to the writer today that he would be here within an hour.

The South Park Board, which controls Soldiers' Field, is scheduled to meet Monday. It is said that the question as to whether the board will rent the stadium for the fight will be determined at that time. It was learned today, however, that efforts were being made to have the board meet either tomorrow or Sunday to consider the proposition.

Rickard will not make his formal announcement until both the South Park Board and the commission have had an opportunity to sanction the bout. The commission, through Righeimer, has indicated that it is ready to go to bat anytime and it is known that there will be no opposition forthcoming from the South Park Board.

Yankees Would Give Up Field for Fight

New York, July 30.—If the Tunney-Dempsey fight should be brought to New York games of the Yankees in September which might conflict can be shifted to another ball park, according to Ed Barrow, business manager of the American League Club

He also said that Rickard's contract for the stadium requires that if the bout is held in New York it be held in the stadium. This is the other side of the exclusive contract Rickard holds to conducting boxing shows in the stadium. This statement of Barrow's was in answer to the one made by Charles A. Stoneham, head of the National League Club, offering the use of the Polo Grounds if the fight should come here.

LYNN FIGHT STEAMS 'EM UP

The advance sale for the Homer Robertson and Babe McCorgary fight scheduled to take place at the General Electric Field, Lynn, Monday night, indicates that a capacity crowd will see the show.

Harry Foley of the North End and Francis Rossi of Lynn will clash in the semi-final of eight rounds and the winner is likely to face Jimmy Sacco in a main bout shortly.

Paul LaPorde of Lynn and Pal Ray of Newark, Frank Baldi of Lynn and John Polansky of Salem, and Charles Dort of East Boston and Young Harry Wills of Beverly will clash in the three six-round preliminaries.

Lebourveau Is Bought By Athletics

Philadelphia, July 30.—Once again Dewitt Lebourveau meets a chance for bigger fame and more glory to say nothing of more cash, and this time it is hardly to be doubted that he will make good. Bevo, the busting baby of the American Association ranks, has been traded to the Athletics for delivery next year, and with Connie Mack hardly in the same class as John McGraw and Rogers Hornsby as a taskmaster it may almost be set down as a prediction that Bevo will stick.

KENNEDY AND HENIGAN IN LOCAL RACE

Bill Kennedy, bricklaying champion of Portchester, New York, former winner of the Boston Marathon race and "Smiling Jimmy Henigan of Malden have entered in the big Scotch 15 mile race at the Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, a week from this afternoon.

Big Bill and "Smiling Jim" could not resist the temptation to have one more crack at the race seeing such runners as Clarence De Mar and Cliff Bricker of Canada.

[illegible] of Port Chester, Koski of the Finnish American A. C., and Harvey Frick also of New York have entered. What is more, Kennedy and Henigan are going to be strongly favored to finish one two in the race

Henigan already has copped the run from De Mar and all the classy runners a few seasons ago and he is running better than ever this season. Accordingly, with ten of the fastest runners on the mark, it would not be surprising if a new record was established for the Caledonian Course.

In the other events St Alphonsus Club entered the strongest team it ever sent after a set of games.

The St. Alphonsus team will consist of Tony Plansky, former Decathlon champion; George Plansky, George Kinal, former Georgetown state star miler; Ernest Gerrior, sprinter, Leo Muldoon, Ray Farrell, Harold Joyce, Ray Silva and other stars of note

Ringmaster Porter, in charge of the games, will now see that Caledonian Grove will be placed in the best possible condition and only the most experienced athletic officials will be on hand to officiate

The Scotch games have always been known as the finest outdoor games of the Summer season. This year will be no exception.

HENNESSEY ON U. S. CUP TEAM

New York, July 30 (I.N.S.).—His brilliant play recently in the national clay court championship and the Illinois State championship has won John Hennessey of Indianapolis a place on the United States Davis Cup squad, it was announced today by the United States Law Tennis Association.

Simultaneously, it was made known that the selection committee has named Charles S. Garland non-playing captain of the 1927 Davis Cup team at the suggestion of several of the leading players of the squad. As constituted at present the Davis Cup squad comprises William T. Tilden, 2d, William M. Johnston, R. Norris Williams, 2d, Lewis White, A. H. Chapin, Jr., Dr. George King, Francis T. Hunter, Cranston Holman, John Doeg, George Lott Jerome Lang and John Hennessey.

Solons Show Tex Rickard Who's Who

New York, July 30.—As the opening move in their campaign to keep the Tunney-Dempsey fight in New York, members of the State Athletic Commission struck at Promoter Tex Rickard through another match yesterday.

Rickard's request for a $23 admission price on the Paulino Uzcudun-Jack Delaney bout was denied. Instead the commissioners set the maximum at $16.50. The bout will take place at the Yankee Stadium on August 11.

Although they made no comment regarding the incident, the action of the commissioners speaks for itself. It was a slap on the wrist for the promoter. If he fails to heed the warnings, stronger measures will be taken. A punch on the chin will come next.

Final Rites for Freddie Welsh

New York, July 30 (I.N.S.).—The hand that tore the lightweight crown from the brow of Freddie Welsh [illegible] years [illegible] and other hands that have been extended to him in hostile gestures will help to [illegible] all that is mortal of the former world's champion to a final resting place today.

Members of the boxing fraternity including former champions and near champions who tested their skill against him in the ring, meet this afternoon to pay a final tribute to Welsh, who died here suddenly last Thursday.

Among the pall-bearers will be Benny Leonard, who won the lightweight title from Welsh and retired undefeated two years ago, Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, Johnny Dundee, Abe Atell and Promoter Humbert Fugazy.

Scotch Know Only One Golf Title

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—There is only one open golf championship to a true Scot.

That was learned yesterday when Bobby Jones returned from St. Andrews with a gold medal emblematic of his second remarkable triumph in two years

"The open championship, 1927," read the inscription. Nothing more On the reverse side was inscribed, "Winner," with a space for the winner's name.

There are other open golf championships, of course, but the British open is the chief event in Scotland.

Berlenbach and Loughran the Next Fight

New York, July 30.—Tommy Loughran now for Paul Berlenbach

That is the next match in the former light heavyweight champion's comeback campaign.

Humbert J. Fugazy holds an old contract binding Berlenbach to him, and the New York State Athletic Commission declared this to be valid today.

Fugazy intends to stage the bout between Loughran, the Philadelphia contender, and Berlenbach August 10, the day before the Paulino-Delaney engagement being promoted by Tex Rickard

The Loughran-Berlenbach fight will be held at Ebbets Field.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Worcester, July 30.—With the local pride Billy Whitcomb and Fred Wright playing the finals of the New Englands today, a large gallery is expected to be on hand to lend its moral support to Whitcomb. Since Heine Schmidt won the State amateur Worcester has never been honored by a major golf champion, so the devotees of the game will all be out to root for Billy Whitcomb.

Although Whitcomb has been a finalist in both the Massachusetts and New England amateur championships, he was put out of the battle for the club title in the third round and Jack Winslow came through with a win.

Herbert Jacques made a fine attempt to square his match with Billy Whitcomb on the 17th green. He had a hard putt and a trifle too much right hand started his ball just enough off line to rim the cup and stay out and The Country Club player was out of the championships.

A year ago, at the New Englands down in Rhode Island, Herbert Jaques took eight consecutive holes from Herb Rust, the former champion of that State. In the third round yesterday, Jaques opened an attack on Gerald Henderson of Weston, which put him six up on the seventh tee.

Red Russ of Brae Burn almost knocked all the wind out of Burt Hoxie's sails on the 5th green yesterday when he jumped a dead down hill stymie and halved the hole. Russ gave a fine exhibition of golf this week, and he is now very well established as one of the top-notchers in the State.

There were few better shots made this week than Billy McPhail's second to the 17th green against Fred Wright. The match was all even and Wright was just short and to the right in two, having hooked his tee shot while McPhail after a fine drive was right at the top of the hill. Billy played an iron which was on the pin all of the way, but it ran about twenty feet by the cup. With the treacherous cross wind, McPhail showed splendid nerve attempting such a shot under the conditions and he was rewarded with a win for Wright took three more to get down.

The Tommie Armour-Johnnie Farrell 36 hole exhibition at Fitchburg today would have attracted hundreds of Worcester golfers were it not for the fact that their most popular golfer, Billy Whitcomb is playing in the finals of the New Englands. Even under the existing conditions there will be a real crowd at the Oak Hill Country Club today.

According to Willie Ogg, the professional at the Worcester Country Club, the Professional Golfers Association is very much opposed to the members of the Ryder Cup being only homebreds. If they continue the present restrictions, within a few years, there will be All Irish, All Scotch, All Italian and All aboard America Ryder Cup teams.

Billy McPhail has been beaten in championship tournaments by Fred Wright five times. It would appear as though a jinx was following McPhail but if he is always as good as he was yesterday he is certain to break in with a win and break that string of defeats.

It is very likely that the New England amateur championships will be decided over the Nashua Country Club course next season New Hampshire is a live wire in the association through the efforts of Oscar Fathers and Nashua is wholly deserving of the honor of holding the title event.

Cooling Custards for the Hot Days

By MARTHA LEE

DURING the hot weather we seem to crave the light, dainty salads and desserts which of course should be represented in our diet, if a more substantial main course is served.

But when a succulent salad forms the major portion of the meal, it is well to give the dessert course more than a little consideration. We want to be sure that the body gets the required protein in order to keep it in good condition and thereby combat the heat. Therefore, if our main dish lacks protein, we must see that the dessert furnishes the necessary quota.

There isn't any type of dessert I know of that is more enjoyed by young and old than custard. Then too, custards may be varied in such a way that they are acceptable two or three times a week. Children will often refuse to eat eggs and milk during the hot days, but few will refuse a delightful, cool, tasty custard.

Custards not only tickle the palate, but furnish the food element —protein—required for proper nutrition. Custards are no trouble to prepare if care is used in the cooking. They are a mixture of eggs, milk, some sweetening and flavoring.

The proportion accepted as ideal to produce a dessert of the right thickness is one egg to each cup of milk. However, the entire egg is not always required as the yolk is often sufficient to thicken one cup of milk.

Custard should be cooked at a low temperature and the required length of time. Such a custard will be smooth and of jelly-like consistency. If cooked at too high a temperature or too long, it will curdle and whey.

In cooking a soft custard, no utensil proves quite so satisfactory as a double boiler. In fact, it is almost impossible to cook an egg mixture directly over the flame because of the difficulty encountered in preventing the eggs from curdling. The eggs should only be slightly beaten to insure a smooth velvety custard for dessert.

FOUNDATION RECIPE—2 cups milk or 1 cup evaporated milk and 1 cup water, 2 eggs, 4 tbsps. granulated sugar, ⅛ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. flavoring.

Scald the milk in a double boiler. Beat the eggs slightly. Add the remaining ingredients and stir in the milk. Return to double boiler and stir constantly until custard is thickened sufficiently to coat the spoon. Cool, add flavoring and chill thoroughly.

FRUIT CUSTARD—Make a soft custard, chill it thoroughly and pour it over peaches, berries, pineapple, oranges or bananas for dessert. Garnish with a spoonful of whipped cream. This makes a most tempting dish; or the egg whites may be used to make a meringue to be used in place of the whipped cream. In this case, cook meringue as for floating island.

CUSTARD CHARLOTTE—Prepare the recipe for plain, soft custard, chilling the mixture thoroughly. Line a glass bowl or individual sherbet cups with strips of sponge cake or lady fingers. Fresh berries, sliced peaches, or apricots may be placed on the bottom of each cup or the serving bowl. Cover with the custard and top with whipped cream that has been slightly sweetened. Sprinkle with shredded, toasted cocoanut or almonds.

BAKED CUSTARD—Use the ingredients in the same proportions as for soft custard. Scald the milk and add to the slightly beaten eggs. All remaining ingredients, strain into a buttered baking dish or individual cups. Sprinkle the top with cinnamon.

Stand in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. until puffy and firm. When a silver knife blade inserted in the centre comes out clear they are done. Cool and then chill. Serve plain or with fresh fruit sauce.

COCOANUT CUSTARD—1 pint milk, ⅓ cup sugar, 3 eggs, separated, ⅓ cup cream, ¼ cup powdered sugar, ¾ cup cocoanut.

Heat milk with sugar, and when sugar dissolves stir into the yolks of the eggs beaten light and a few grains of salt, remove from the fire, and while warm add cream. Beat until smooth and partly cool, pour into a serving dish, beat the whites of the eggs with the powdered sugar and cocoanut, spread upon the top of custard, and brown lightly in the oven.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

CO-OPERATION SAVES TIME AND MONEY FOR ALL

WHO'S to blame that there is so little saved from the family income?

Each side of the house, in turn, passes the blame to the other.

You know it would be possible for you to save more, but because your life partner won't make the sacrifices you think that he or she should you don't deny yourself anything.

There you are—both of you to blame.

Result is a desire to keep even each with the other.

There is too much self interest and not enough common interest.

How is it in your home?

Don't waste time as well as money trying to place the blame.

Why not both try to put your home on a sound business basis?

You can do this but there must be the pull-together spirit.

Lead Poisoning in Women

By Chas A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU may be one of the thousands who, in one way or another, are engaged in some form of lead industry.

Lead industries have heretofore been classified as dangerous industries, and in the absence of proper hygienic precautions, they are pet to be so classified.

It is of the natural law that lead, especially in the form of metallic dust, when taken into the human system produces very definite and dangerous poisonous results.

The chief danger in any lead trade results from the inhalation of dust or fumes. The painter who uses ready mixed paint incurs only the very slight danger of swallowing small amounts of lead from his paint-smeared fingers. As soon, however, as he uses sandpaper on painted surfaces by any dry process he begins to inhale large amounts of lead dust, and he inhales oxides of lead when he burns paint from a painted surface with a blow-lamp.

Oliver and Aub have demonstrated by experiments on animals that it is much more dangerous to inhale small quantities of insoluble lead than it is to eat very large amounts of it.

Inhaled and ingested lead compounds are stored as an insoluble phosphate in the skeleton. Workers in dusty lead trades may carry anything from a half to one grain of lead phosphate in their bones. These deposits may be gradually mobilized and thus be thrown off by the ordinary processes of life. But in passing through the blood stream lead produces symptoms of poisoning.

Women are a good deal more susceptible to lead poisoning than men. Alice Hamilton found in a white lead works in Newcastle-on-Tyne that the incidence rate of woman who suffered from lead poisoning was double that of men, and that it was also double in the Staffordshire potteries. The female reaches certain stages of lead poisoning in about half the time for the male to reach them.

Other authorities, such as Collis and Greenwood, are not satisfied that females are more susceptible than men.

It is fairly certain, says Dr. Kathleen Kitchen, that lead does more quantitative harm to women than men, for they die in a shorter time and get more severe forms of poisoning, especially convulsions and blindness.

Real Happiness Isn't Ready-Made

By LUCY LOWELL

"WHAT," a friend writes to ask, "is happiness? What is a good time?

"What I wish to know," she goes on, "is whether I am different from every one, and, if so, what I ought to do about it?"

She is a young married woman, she explains, with a lovable husband and a set of friends most of whom are successful young married folk like themselves.

And every now and again they "step out," as she describes it. They doll up and visit Broadway, take in a night club perhaps and have a rarebit and a few dances—even a cocktail on occasion.

"And they all feel they're having a gorgeous time," she informs me. "And, of course, I try to act as if I thought so, too, but I don't. It seems sort of forced, as if we all were working so hard for a bit of gayety.

"I think I ought not feel so, and I'm trying to overcome it, but making no progress. Do you believe Miss Lowell, I shouldn't go on these parties—they don't happen often, anyway—or is there something wrong with me I should change?"

As far as I can see, there is nothing wrong with this young woman and somehow I hope she will change neither herself nor her viewpoint.

She strikes me as a wholesome person with a true, sure understanding of values, and that is a thing all too rare in this age of jazz and false merry-making.

For it is false and forced. Watch those who sit about you—four-fifths of them, at least—in any Broadway resort where there is too much rich food, too much hilarious dancing and too many cocktails.

They laugh a great deal—yes. But does their laughter ring true? Isn't it rather as if they laugh because they believe it the thing to do?

Real happiness never is a thing that can be made to order. It comes from an orderly, peaceful habit of mind and from sweetness of heart. And these are dependent upon genuineness.

Go to the night clubs if you wish, but take them in as an experiment. Look upon them as you would upon a play; a portrayal of a side of life which you would not necessarily care to have for your own.

Laugh at them, but do not be dazzled by the lights. And, remember, happiness is within you, and no outside scenes or circumstances can take it from you, if it is truly yours.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My sister is getting married soon and plans to have six bridesmaids and six ushers.

The question upon which we all differ is: Should the usher pay for his partner's bouquet, or should the groom pay for the six bouquets?

We will be most grateful to you if you will tell us which is correct.

HAZEL.

THE ushers are not by any means supposed to send the bouquets to the bridesmaids. Neither is the groom supposed to do this, although he may volunteer to do it. The custom is for the parents of the bride or the bride herself, if she is paying for her own wedding, to present the bouquets to the bridesmaids. They are planned for a part of their costumes, and so it is more convenient for the bride's family to plan for them to harmonize with the costumes and with the church decorations.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please answer this question. A young lady eloped and was married in a neighboring town. Her mother sent out announcements two weeks later. This young lady has an aunt who says that the bride should have written first to tell her of her marriage. The bride says that, after receiving the announcement, the aunt should have sent best wishes to her. The aunt could have gotten the address from the mother, as she is really one of the family. M. K.

THE last clause—"as she really is one of the family"—justifies the point of view of the aunt. Since she is such a close member of the family, I should think that she would be hurt that the bride did not write her a note and tell her of her wedding. For one so closely connected with the family to receive the news of such an important event in this formal way does seem out of order. When the bride decided to tell of her unconventional marriage, she should have written notes telling the news to her close relatives and friends. Indeed, socially it was more important that she do this than that she send out announcements.

"Passing the Salt."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am a bride, and, like most brides, I am struggling with questions of a limited budget. But I do want my table to look nice. I am confronted with the problem of buying salts and peppers for my table. Is it necessary that I have one set for every person?

Thank you for answering this problem.

A BRIDE.

NO. As a matter of fact it is oftener arranged now that there shall be one set for every two people. That is, the set is placed between alternate covers.

And one of the great advantages of this is that it begins many a conversation among guests. Talking of the weather and "passing the salt" are the two greatest conversation-compelling items of social intercourse, I believe.

This way to better icings

EXPERT cooks who have learned "a thing or two" about icings from long experience, tell you that the richest, smoothest, creamiest, easiest icings in the world are made with Standard Brand Condensed Milk. And here's the reason:

Standard Brand Milk is delicious blend of full-cream country milk (from which most of the water has been removed) and finest sugar. Because it is so rich and thick and smooth and creamy, icings made from it require no cooking—no laborious "testing" — and are always sure to be perfect in flavor and consistency. This recipe will prove it:

Chocolate Icing

2 squares of unsweetened chocolate
½ cup Standard Brand Condensed Milk.

Melt the chocolate over hot water; add the Condensed Milk; slowly stir smooth and continue stirring over hot water about one minute until it thickens. This may be spread on the cake while the cake is hot or after the cake is cool.

Not only icings, but desserts, salad dressings, hot breads, ice cream, candies—any dish, in fact, that requires both milk and sugar —will be made better by Standard Brand Condensed Milk. Because so much of the water has been removed, it is more than twice as rich as bottled milk. Get this extra goodness into your cooking! . . . Watch this space for other delicious recipes.

And tomorrow morning—try Standard Brand in your coffee! It creams-and-sugars, both at the same time—deliciously—at one-half the cost of separate cream and sugar . . . Get Standard Brand from your grocer today. It keeps for days after the can is opened—even without ice!

A Story of Sylvia Bryant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

Joyce Ackerman, society woman and wife of Vance Ackerman, a rich broker, appeals to a mutual friend, Alexander Ladd, a successful lawyer, to help her in her battle with Margot Liggett, who has won her husband's affections. Ladd proposes that Mrs. Ackerman engage Sylvia Bryant, his stenographer, a beautiful and charming young girl, as her social secretary. Mrs. Ackerman agrees and Ladd summons Sylvia.

Sylvia finally consents and her father and mother are very much pleased.

CHAPTER SIX

IN the morning Sylvia went back to the office to attend to odds and ends of quitting her job. Almost a whole week's salary was coming to her. Among the other girls her departure excited a flicker of passing interest—no more. After all, she had been a "new girl." Another face tomorrow would be sitting at her typewriter. In the vast hive of Boston's working women she was no more than an atom, little different, externally, from countless other human atoms.

Sylvia lingered in the office, wondering if she should seek Alexander Ladd to tell him she was going and to thank him. The problem was solved for her when he appeared from his own private office, caught sight of her and came up to her.

"I can only hope it's right." Ackerman smiled.

"And consequently you're somewhat thrilled at Miss Bryant's loveliness. Your taste is improving. Some of his lady friends lately have been rather shopworn—"

"Margot Liggett," Stuart put in cheerfully malicious.

"Tut-tut!" Ackerman retorted.

"Aren't men wonderful?" Stuart smiled at Sylvia as all rose from the table. "They're all Don Juans at heart."

"Quite so, quite so," declared Vance Ackerman expansively, with a good meal under his belt. "By the way, a chap gave me two tickets for Ziegfeld's new show tonight. You saw it at the matinee the other day, didn't you, Joyce?"

BOOK REVIEW

"Maurine," the Best Seller of 1901, Whittled Down for Busy Readers

Although the moths of sorrow were eating at Maurine's heart she hopscotched about the garden with her so-called school chum and house guest, Helen Trevor, for two days after Vivian Dangerfield gave her the fish eye.

On the third day Maurine's orphan cot, Roy Montaine, arrived—"Roy, our Roy, come back to us. Once more."

We looked into his laughing handsome eyes,
Which, while they gave Aunt Ruth a glad surprise
In no way puzzled her; for one glance told
What each succeeding one confirmed, that he
Who bent above her with his lissome grace
Of fine form, though grown so tall, could be
No other than the Roy Montaine of old."

Hot doggie! But hold that shout of glee, on, constant reader. The sunshine of Roy's visit may yet be a frost to further blight the tender bud of love withering in the bosom of dear, sweet Maurine. We shall see.

DAILY SHORT STORY -:- -:-

THE CONTAMINATION OF MARTHA

By Emily Burton

"MARTHA arrives today," said Mrs. Grant in a voice that expressed despair.

"Oh! Your niece who is to spend the Winter with you," replied Mrs. Mayfield. "What does she look like?"

"I shudder to think," stated Martha's aunt, "I haven't seen her since she was a child, but I feel sure that she wears two petticoats and cotton stockings—I doubt if she even uses face powder."

"Clothes and complexion can be changed," consoled Mrs. Mayfield.

"It goes deeper than that," continued Mrs Grant, "after my sister died Martha went to live with her grandmother, a pious, narrow country woman, who has drilled her own ideas into the child's head. Judging from her letters she is just too perfect for 'his world!'"

"Well, I should think that you might manage to contaminate her," laughed Mrs. Mayfield.

"That's an inspiration," replied the aunt, "will you help me?"

"I'd love it," declared Mrs Mayfield, "and I'll begin by sending my wild stepson to meet her."

"Neil? My dear! What a shock for him! Those two are exactly a century apart."

Late that afternoon a long blue roadster swung around the corner at high speed and stopped short in front of the railroad station. A young man sprang from the car and ran up the steps into the station. His brown tweed golf suit was carelessly worn. His sleek black head boasted no hat at all. His lithe body radiated youth and sophistication.

"Gosh! I'm late!" he exclaimed as he surveyed the deserted station. "I wonder if that girl is still here."

A search of the waiting room revealed a prim little figure sitting quietly on the edge of a bench.

"Pardon me—are you—er—I mean—did you—I m looking for a young lady who is Mrs. Grant's niece. What the devil was the matter with his tongue?

"You! Your are? Oh, yes, you are." The boy stared at her as though he couldn't believe his eyes. "Well shades of 1864!" he almost said aloud. "Curls! schoolgirl complexion! Dress nearly to her ankles!"

In spite of their mutual confusion they managed to reach the blue car, accompanied by her two well-worn suitcases. Then they sped homeward at a pace that took the little country girl's hat off her head.

"Just like a Prince in a fairy tale," she thought, her heart pounding as Ned helped her out of the car at her aunt's door.

It was after dinner that Mrs. Grant, her niece and Mrs. Mayfield were having a quiet chat.

"Where is your handsome son, this evening?" Mrs. Grant inquired, more to make conversation than anything else.

"Ned? I think he is attending a farewell dinner at his club. He goes back to college tomorrow, you know," answered Mrs. Mayfield.

The little Cinderella's heart sank, but she said not a word. Presently the conversation drifted around to the subject of clothes.

"I'm going to get Martha some pretty things," said her aunt. "We'll have a little shopping trip tomorrow."

"But, Aunt Sue, I have two serge dresses and a coat," protested the girl, "and grandmother said that I was not to let you spend any money on me."

Mrs. Grant laughed, but there was a peculiar glint in her eyes.

In the course of the evening she made Martha understand that she had come to live in an entirely different world from her former home and that if she expected to be tolerated by her aunt's social circle she must adapt herself to the dress and the customs of that circle.

Martha lay in her pretty white bed that night and thought it all out. She must either cling to her grandmother's standards of sh must accept those of her aunt's world.

Then a hatless figure in brown tweeds darted into her vision. To her he was the most magnificent person in the whole universe.

"If I do what Aunt Sue says, maybe he will like me," she thought.

And just before she fell asleep she said aloud, "I'll do it. I'll do every blessed thing they tell me to do and more."

Four months later a much perturbed young matron came again to her friend for comfort and advice.

"I'm worried to death about Martha," declared Mrs. Grant. "She stands in front of her mirror half the time and the rest of the time she is racing around over the country in some boy's car with a cigarette in her mouth."

"Well we set out to contaminate her, didn't we?" answered Mrs. Mayfield with a wry little smile.

"Yes, but we overshot the mark," groaned Martha's aunt.

The holiday season as on and the social season was at its height. Mrs. Grant's wild niece was very much in demand.

Ned Mayfield was among the throng that pursued. But what troubled her was his attitude. He followed her about but never paid her a compliment. In fact, he seemed to glower disapproval at her. She had worked to bring about this change in herself, just to please him—and now he didn't like her at all.

It was three o'clock one morning when Ned's blue roadster came whizzing down the highway toward home. Just as it turned into the streets of the town Martha saw a great smoke with tiny flames shooting up above the roof of a building.

"The Mammouth Warehouse is on fire!" she cried.

"And we have three hundred barrels of oil stored in there," Ned answered. "And the Chemical plant is just across the street. It will burn up the town if the fire reaches those explosives."

"What shall we do?" she asked.

"I'll get out at the Warehouse and see what I can do," he said. "You race into town and give the alarm."

So Martha took the wheel and drove frantically toward the sleeping town. A mile further on she came to a filling station where she know she would find a telephone. The office was locked, but she broke the window with a piece of iron pipe and crawled through the opening.

Two minutes later the fire company was clanging its way toward the Mammouth Warehouse. And in two minutes more, half the town was on its way to the fire.

They found Ned on top of the building fighting the flames single handed. But as soon as the firemen arrived he slipped down and went in search of Martha.

He found her on the edge of the crowd.

Her clothes were torn and her hair was streaming down her back. Her face was damp with perspiration and there was a smudge across her forehead. A poor bedraggled little figure!

Ned gasped as he saw her.

"You're wonderful!" he said in an awed tone. "Honest, Martha, you look just as you did the first time I saw you."

"How terrible!" she cried.

"Terrible!" but his eyes sparkled, "You were glorious then. You were exactly what a sweet little girl should be. I've loved you from that moment. I've been sick over the change in you. But now I know it was just on the surface. Listen, darling, I want to take you out of all this jazz mania. Will you marry me tonight, honey?"

"No," she replied.

His face fell.

"You'll have to wait until tomorrow."

"It's tomorrow now," he answered as he took her in his arms.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

IT is estimated that there are over a hundred thousand tramps roaming the country this year. Half of them are idle and the other fifty per cent. aren't doing anything.

THEY loaf in the Winter and rest in the Summer.

OF course, all tramps aren't lazy. One hobo found a job the other afternoon but his wife wouldn't take it.

HE finally committed bigamy before he had to get out and shift for himself.

A BULLDOG bit him the other day and got indigestion.

VERY few women keep revolvers in this house any more. It's easier to frighten a tramp with a wash basin.

A BATHTUB on the front porch will give you more protection than the National Guard.

A LOADED faucet is better than a shotgun.

ONE tramp was ostracized last Summer because he had water on the knee.

THE other hoboes were afraid it might be contageous.

SEVERAL of these ankle tourists have gotten together and formed an association. They want longer menus and shorter detours.

IN some States they're even demanding food with their meals.

THEY'RE trying to organize a union so that they can call a permanent strike.

EVERY hobo will be his own walking delegate.

BY making arrangements with the leading foot experts, every chiropodist parlor will be a tourist camp.

BUMMNG is the easiest profession in the world. Anybody can become a hobo. All you need is plenty of time and a box of corn plasters.

Famous Composers

THE more one reads of the lives of the famous, the more powerfully is one convinced that genius and sorrow go hand in hand. Particularly is this true of him who is recognized as the master of the sonata form in music—Ludwig Van Beethoven.

Born at Bonn, Prussia, in 1770, early in life the child Beethoven learned the stern lessons of poverty and sorrow. His father, although recognized as a good musician, made life miserable for his family through his excessive fondness for drinking. When his father recognized the fact that his son was unusually gifted, he instituted a system of study which must have been absolute torture to the sensitive child. Frequently, when he returned late at night after an orgy of drinking, he would waken the child, make him dress and practice late into the night.

When Beethoven was sixteen years old, he went to Vienna to meet Mozart, who said of him that "he would give the world something worth listening to some day." While in Vienna his mother died and Beethoven returned to Bonn to shoulder the responsibilities of his family. He stayed in Bonn for several years, giving lessons and supporting his worthless brothers and father. His greatest happiness during this trying period was the friendship of a family named Breuning. They did much to lighten Beethoven's sorrowful life.

At the age of twenty-two, Beethoven went to Vienna, where he speedily became the fashion among aristocratic circles and had for pupils many of the nobility. One of his pupils was the Countess Giulietta Guicciardi, with whom Beethoven fell madly in love. However, the capricious lady married another, thus adding much cruel suffering to his already tortured soul. It is said that she was the inspiration for his glorious "Moonlight Sonata."

When about twenty-five years of age, Beethoven's hearing began to fail, and continued steadily until he was totally deaf. What a fate for one whose very life was the poetry of music. As one writer expresses it, he was hindered from expressing in words the love that he felt for mankind; he put it into his compositions, his art and his religion being closely allied. More and more he lived in an inner world of heavenly sounds, where commonplace things could not penetrate."

Even in his last years Beethoven was ever to know naught but sorrow. He took his nephew, whom he adored, to rear, and was repaid by ingratitude and a load of debts. It is told that Beethoven denied himself many of the necessities of life to provide for this profligate boy.

On a visit to his brother, Beethoven caught cold, and it was soon realized that this illness would be his last. On March 26, 1827, when a terrific storm was raging, Beethoven went to rest. In striking contrast to Mozart's funeral, twenty-five thousand people lined the streets of Vienna and escorted the master to his last resting place. His grave is marked by a simple monument, engraved with the single word "Beethoven."

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, my Daughter, the language of a lover is the speech of poets; but a married man hath a language all his OWN! For, alas, it is composed chiefly of grunts and monosyllables, alibis and "explanations."

Behold, before marriage, he saith, "Beloved, how soon shall I see thee again?"

But after marriage, he saith, "For the love of Mike! I got here as soon as I could!"

But after marriage he saith, "Uh, huh! Thine hair looketh all right!"

Before marriage he saith, "Sigh not, my darling! Thy tears make sad mine heart!" But after marriage he saith, "For Pete's sake, what are thou STEWING about, NOW?"

Before marriage he saith, "How proud am I, that all men's eyes follow after thee with looks of admiration and covetousness and envy! For thou art MINE!"

But after marriage he saith, "Go to! Hast thou too much rouge upon thy cheeks or is thy skirt too short, that all those SIMPS should stare at thee?

Before marriage he saith, "Thou art as the rose of morning, sweet with fragrance and frankincense and myrrh!"

But after marriage he saith, "What is that loud STUFF wherewith thou soakest thyself?"

Before marriage he saith, "Let ME carry thy sunshade and thy vanity case and thy bathing cape—for they are too heavy for thy tender hands!"

But after marriage he saith, "Wherefore dost thou lug all this truck about with thee? Dost thou think that I am a moving-van?"

Before marriage, all other men appear unto him as fascinating devils, who woudl steal thee away from him. But after marriage, thou mayest flirt all evening with a Prince Charming, and he will only yawn, saying, "What dost thou SEE in that DUB?"

Yet let not thine heart be troubled, my Daughter. For though a lover's words and an husband's be different, there is less significance in twenty tender protestations from a free-lance than in one casual pat upon thehead from a man of whom thou canst say, "This is MINE!"

Announcer at Statler WBZA Studio Also Sings Solos

The voice heard most often from the Statler studio of WBZA is that of Aidan Redmond. Redmond announces the symphony concert with the same excellent facility as when describing a city reception. Redmond is also possessor of a good concert hall voice and is heard often in special broadcosts.

UNITED FRUIT'S 'EMPIRE' IS GROWING

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

United Fruit's "empire" is growing. President Victor M. Cutter of Newton has long since disproven the old Wall Street belief that prevailed when the late Andrew Preston was president to the effect that Fruit was "a one-man company." Wall Street interests sold Fruit heavily and were badly trapped when investors renewed buying. Concession in Panama is the latest addition to Fruit's holdings.

Victor M. Cutter

In the first half of this year Fruit earned its entire 1927 dividend.

Standard Oil Co. of New York, covering New England, is expected soon to offer at two cents a gallon premium a new high test gasoline. It will be called "Redtop." The name may have been taken from that applied to a variety of New England hay, less valuable than timothy or herd's-grass.

Cities Service Company, which has an oil plant near Fore River that gets blamed whenever oil appears in the fine bathing waters nearby, is expanding. It has acquired for its Oil Marketing Division the C. H. Lockwood Company of Kenosha, Wis. Purchase adds to Cities Service chain a number of retail stations along the main highway from Chicago to Milwaukee. The new company becomes a subsidiary of Cities Service organization, which now distributes gasoline and oil products in more than 2,600 communities in 22 States.

Century for August contains an inspiring article by Eugenia Wallace on "Pioneering in Wall Street," showing how women in recent years have entered the upper branches of the profession of investment. The many women who hold good positions in State street and its environs will learn with interest of the new appreciation of female business talent. After all, for as many years as we can remember, the women of America, mostly handling their husband's pay envelopes, have done the bulk of the notable saving that has brought our homes to a standard well above those of the rest of the world, as we are pleased to believe. The women are the real "financiers."

Brokers of note with whom I have unanimous in declaring may reasonably expect to se considerable inflation in the stock market. Moody's takes practically the same view, stating brokers' loans are pretty likely to expand vigorously. Moody's adds: "Such expansion almost never fails to occur except in years of serious financial trouble or trade depression."

Thursday's bear drive on General Motors, which resulted so disastrously for the bruins, was reminiscent of the bear drive a few months ago on Nash Motors. Offerings of this so-called Lee, Higginson stock were freely made by the bears, but the price quickly reached a "peg mark" against which frenzied assault beat themselves out in vain, with a costliness that reminded one of the price of real war.

Du Pont, despite Bancitaly claims, is called "the greatest investment trust in the world." Attention was called to the fact in this column weeks ago, when it was rumored Du Pont interests were buying into Amoskeag.

* * *

Federal Trade Commission inquiry into relations of Du Pont, U. S. Steel and General Motors is unlikely to reveal anything the newspapers do not know. Commissioner Abram F. Myers, conducting the inquiry, was appointed less than a year ago by President Coolidge. He hails from Iowa, is a lawyer and has been at Washington for many years, rising to his present post from a sub-clerical position.

* * *

B. C. Forbes says: "Rumors that Pierre S. du Pont is slated to succeed Judge Gary as head of the United States Steel Corporation are, I understand, absolutely baseless. Mr. du Pont, who has given millions for education and other worthy purposes, has no such ambitions. He accepted the presidency of General Motors when the du Ponts took over control at the end of 1920, only as a temporary emergency measure, and stepped aside three years later in favor of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., who has filled the position with most brilliant success."

* * *

"Long live the King." Meantime, the king aforementioned, Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of U. S. Steel, lies ill. Mr. du Pont is abroad. If Judge Gary's illness should take an unexpected turn for the worse—he is not a young man, as years go—it is possible another such situation would arise, with its call for a strong hand, as that which existed when Mr. du Pont stepped into the gap once before.

ARMOUR HURT BY BETRAYAL OF TRUSTED

By B. C. FORBES.

New York, July 30.—More big men die of a broken heart than of broken bones. The serious illness of J. Ogden Armour, in London, has recently attracted much attention.

B. C. Forbes

Mr. Armour is a saddened broken spirited human being.

He was born with a sensitive, sentimental temperament. The death of his famous father and of his only brother left him in single-handed control of the vast packing business. He worked hard and became interested in banks, railroads and other large-scale enterprises. But, naturally, he had to delegate most of the actual, active operating of the Armour activities to others. He trusted them implicitly. When in his prime physically and financially he once said to me, during a long heart-to-heart talk:

"I have no social ambitions. My ambition is to run Armour & Company successfully and to give a great many young men a chance to make their way in the world. My associates in the business are my closest friends, my chums. If it weren't for the fun there is in working with them and being with them, I wouldn't—I couldn't—stay in business."

SPURNS $130,000,000

Mr. Armour then revealed for the first time, that he had once been offered $130,000 000 for his company but had unhesitatingly declined it. "What could I do with $130,000,000?" he remarked.

"Do you let sentiment enter into running your business?" I asked.

"Enter into running it?" he repeated. "Why, I run it on sentiment. If I didn't it would not be successful—and it wouldn't be worth while running. What is it that makes an organization successful? Isn't it the loyalty and the enthusiasm of the many men engaged in it And how can any man inspire these sentiments if he has no sentiment in his own make-up? No one man can run a big concern; he must depend upon others for the actual doing of almost everything."

Well, some of those upon whom Mr. Armour depended played him false. They misled him at every turn. And when it was finally revealed to him that financial reorganization had become necessary he was shocked beyond measure. Not only was his pride in the standing of Armour & Co. hurt, but he was broken-hearted over the conviction, driven into him, that his most trusted associates had proved utterly unworthy.

When he stepped aside from the active direction of the business which had been his whole life he was broken in spirit.

MONEY MAKES POOR.

Mr. Armour did not rejoice in having been born rich. He said:

"The world is a worse place for a young man with a lot of money than for one without any. I have known many men who were good men when they had no great amount of money, but who let riches go to their heads and make poor men of them.

"The richer and bigger you are the more considerate you have to be of other people's feelings if you are going to take the curse off being rich. My father once said to me, 'You have to take the curse off being a rich man.'

"I have tried in my own way not to aggravate the offense of being a rich man or a rich man's son."

Let it be added that not once during these later-day revelations has one unworthy, dishonest act been laid at Mr. Armour's own door. His wounds have come from those who should have been his most faithful friends.

One well-known American who died of a broken heart was Horace Dodge of automobile fame. From the day his brother, John F., died tragically, suddenly, he mourned and mourned until, within a year, he followed him to the grave.

FIREWORKS TO PORTRAY LINDBERGH'S FLIGHT

Monster fireworks, featuring the flight of Lindbergh from New York to Paris, will be staged by the Michael J. Perkins Post of the American Legion at Braves Field, next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, August 3, 4 and 5.

The "Lindy" flight, which will be the feature of the display, will depict the flying ace starting from New York, winging his way across the Atlantic and finally landing in Paris. All will be vividly and realistically portrayed in the fireworks.

Many of the other fireworks displays will be exceptional, especially the "portraits in fire" of the other seven transoceanic flyers, Hegenberger, Maitland, Byrd, Chamberlin, Acosta, Balchen and Noville, and the fireworks portraits of Coli and Nungesser, the lost French transatlantic flyers.

AMERICANS GIVE FRANCE $31,186 NUNGESSER FUND

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—The American committee of the Nungesser-Coli fund today turned over to Paul Claudel, the French ambassador, a check for $31,186.44. The money will be transmitted by the ambassador to the president of the French republic with instructions that one-half of it be delivered to the mother of Captain Nungesser and the other half to the mother of Captain Coli.

HUB MAN NAMED HEAD OF OSTEOPATHIC DEPARTMENT

Dr. John A. MacDonald of Boston, has been appointed chairman of the department of public affairs of the American Osteopathic Association, according to dispatches from Denver today. His departure will have three bureaus to look after, industrial and institutional service clinics, public health and public education.

Police Get Movies of Rum Club for Rich

Tampa, Fla., July 30 (A.P.).—An expose revealing the operations of Tampa's most fashionable and exclusive "speak easy," with prominent business and civic leaders as its select habitues, has been forecast here next week by municipal Judge Leo Stainaker, following raids on "The Key Club."

Judge Stainaker yesterday announced the premier showing in his court "sometime next week" of a series of moving picture films depicting scenes at the entrance to this club in which a number of representative citizens enact the leading roles.

The raids were said to have culminated repeated attempts of authorities to obtain evidence on the activities of "The Key Club," which flourished for months almost within the heart of the city. Elaborately furnished quarters were maintained for the use of its patrons.

Participation was by membership granted only on the highest recommendation, and admittance to the club was by an unmarked key, which likewise was the emblem of the so-called organization.

After repeated failures to gain admittance to the club, police in an anonymous letter received one of the coveted keys from the wife of a club member, who declared she wanted the place raided because her husband neglected the family to pay for liquor at the club.

NEW DEVICE PICKS UP SIGNAL 50 MILES AWAY

Schenectady, N. Y., July 30 (A.P.)—Science once more has come to man's aid in his search for facts.

The General Electric Company and the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey have developed a device by which a telescope, at night, may be pointed directly at a signal light fifty miles away without the delay caused by the "cut-and-try" method.

The apparatus makes use of fused quartz which transmits light with a minimum of absorption and apparently causes light to bend around corners. Light from a shielded flashlight is transmitted to the tapered ends of two fused quartz rods, the ends of which are bent at right angles and placed parallel with the barrel of the telescope.

By bringing these two points of light into line with the distant signal the observer draws the beacon into the limited field of the telescope.

Because of more favorable atmospheric conditions many of the measurements made by the Geodetic Survey are taken at night.

GAS GUSHER HURLS FIERY TORCH 200 FEET IN AIR

Houston, Tex., July 30 (A.P.)—Enough gas to supply homes of a large city today fed a 200-foot torch that shot from a well at Pierce Junction, near here. The huge gasser blew itself in with a roar and vibration sufficient to shake every building in the vicinity.

The well was ignited under an estimated pressure of 2,500 pounds to the square inch. The flow was set at 50,000,000 cubic feet a day. The steel derrick soon melted. No one was injured. A battery of boilers was assembled in an attempt to smother the flame with steam.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

Two choruses and an aria from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" will be sung at St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday evening at 7:30. Chester McLeod, tenor, will sing "If With All Your Hearts You Truly Seek Me." The Summer chorus of forty men and women will sing "He Watching Over Israel" and "Be Not Afraid."

The Rev. Edward T. Sullivan will preach at the 11 o'clock service on "The Moral Uses of Adversity." His subject at the 7:30 service will be "If I Had Known; or Why Did I Never Try to Understand?"

"DAMN" NOT SWEAR WORD; SO SAYS THE COURT

Ocean Grove, N. J., July 30 (A.P.).—Kenneth W. MacWhinney, justice of the peace in this private community run by a camp meeting association, has some ideas on what constitutes profanity.

Raymond L. Sloat, attorney, up before the justice for dressing on the beach, complained of a policeman's language. "'Damm' is not a swear word," said the justice.

GORGEOUS WAR BONNET READY FOR COOLIDGE

Rapid City, S. D., July 30 (A.P.).—A war bonnet gorgeous in feathers, beads and strands of colored lamb's wool is the crown to be placed upon President Coolidge next week when he becomes a chief of the Sioux Indians.

It is one of those magnificent creations of primitive splendor often seen on Wild West circus posters, but rarely in the show itself. Eagle feathers, dyed in the juice of red berries and other native coloring matter, stand up proudly in a great semi-circle around the forehead and then dip downward along the tail, which nearly touches the ground.

SKILLED HANDIWORK.

The buckskin band into which the feathers are set is beautifully worked in colored beads and semi-precious stones. Pieces of bronze, ratting and jingles complete this handiwork of the aborigines.

Up in the Black Hills strange doings are taking place. Conference after conference is being held by the score of Sioux chiefs who will take part. There is considerable dismay because the name to be conferred upon Mr. Coolidge has leaked out and there are good indications that the name originally chosen at the campfire meeting in the moonlight—Chief Leading Eagle—will be abandoned and another selected.

WORRIED OVER MOON.

Although the chiefs do not like to have it mentioned, it is known that a proposal was made at one of the conferences to change the name, but an old custom is said to decree that an Indian name for a white chief must be selected in the light of a full moon and the chiefs are worried because the next full moon does not occur here until after the Deadwood ceremonies.

Deep in the hills Chief Crazy Horse and Kills a Hundred are phrasing the coronation speech which will be delivered in the Sioux dialect and translated to the throng. Crazy Horse is 78 and knows how to conduct the rituals of his fathers in the most solemn and dignified way.

As a young man of 27 he was with his father when the Sioux wiped out General Custer and his men at Little Big Horn.

MANY BOSTONIANS DUE ON LACONIA

Among the passengers on the Cunarder Laconia, from Liverpool and Queenstown, expected to arrive at East Boston tomorrow, are Dr. Harvey Cushing and his daughter, Betsy Cushing; Hugh Bancroft of the Boston News Bureau, with Mrs. Bancroft and their daughters Jane and Jessie Bancroft, and son Hugh, Jr.; the Baroness Ludwig Knoop of Tunbridge Wells, England, sister of Mrs. Ellerton P. Whitney of Milton, with her daughters, Marlow L. and Adele M. Knoop.

The baroness was the former Emily W. Sargent of Beacon street and has not visited Boston in 18 years. She will visit the Ellerton Whitneys and her brother. Others on board the liner are Lars Anderson, Mrs. C. P. Rimmer and children, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Farrington, Mrs. William Nickerson and sons and Miss A. R. Anthony.

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell with Mrs. O'Connell is also returning on the Westphalia.
